

On October 1, 1891, the 465 new students who were on hand for opening day ceremonies at Leland Stanford Junior University greeted Leland and Jane Stanford enthusiastically, with a chant they had made up and rehearsed only that morning. Wah-hoo! Wah-hoo! L-S-J-U! Stanford! Its wild and spirited tone symbolized the excitement of this bold adventure. As a pioneer faculty member recalled, "Hope was in every heart, and the presiding spirit of freedom prompted us to dare greatly."

For the Stanford's on that day, the university was the realization of a dream and a fitting tribute to the memory of their only son, who had died of typhoid fever weeks before his sixteenth birthday. Far from the nation's center of culture and unencumbered by tradition or ivy, the new university drew students from all over the country: many from California; some who followed professors hired from other colleges and universities; and some simply seeking adventure in the West. Though there were many difficulties during the first months – housing was inadequate, microscopes and books were late in arriving from the East – the first year foretold greatness. As Jane Stanford wrote in the summer of 1892, "Even our fondest hopes have been realized."

Ideas of "Practical Education"

Governor and Mrs. Stanford had come from families of modest means and had built their way up through a life of hard work. So it was natural that their first thoughts were to establish an institution where young men and women could "grapple successfully with the practicalities of life." As their thoughts matured, these ideas of "practical education" enlarged to the concept of producing cultured and useful citizens who were well-prepared for professional success.

More than one hundred years later, the university still enjoys the original 8,180 acres (almost 13 square miles) of grassy fields, eucalyptus groves, and rolling hills that were the Stanfords' generous legacy, as well as the Quadrangle of "long corridors with their stately pillars" at the center of campus. It is still true, as the philosopher William James said, during his stint as a visiting professor, that the climate is "so friendly ... that every morning wakes one fresh for new amounts of work."

Current Perspectives

In other ways, the university has changed tremendously on its way to recognition as one of the world's great universities. At the hub of a vital and diverse Bay Area, Stanford is an hour's drive south of San Francisco and just a few miles north of the Silicon Valley, an area dotted with computer and high technology firms largely spawned by the university's faculty and graduates. On campus, students and faculty enjoy new libraries, modern laboratories, sports facilities, and comfortable residences. Contemporary sculpture, as well as pieces from the Stanford Museum's extensive collection of sculpture by Auguste Rodin, is placed throughout the campus, providing unexpected pleasures at many turns. At the Stanford Medical Center, world-renowned for its research, teaching, and patient care, scientists and physicians are searching for answers to fundamental questions about health and disease. Ninety miles down the coast, at Stanford's Hopkins Marine Station on the Monterey Bay, scientists are working to better understand the mechanisms of evolution, human development, and ecological systems.

The university is organized into seven schools: Earth Sciences, Education, Engineering, the Graduate School of Business, Humanities and Sciences, Law and Medicine. In addition, there are more than 30 interdisciplinary centers, programs, and research laboratories – including the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace; the Institute for International Studies; the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center; and the Stanford Center for the Study of Families, Children and Youth – where faculty from a wide range of fields bring different perspectives to bear on issues and problems. Stanford's Overseas Studies Program offers students in all fields remarkable opportunities for study abroad, with campuses in Paris, Kyoto, Santiago, Berlin, Oxford, Florence, and Moscow.

Stanford People

By any measure, Stanford's faculty – which numbers approximately 1,700 – is one of the most distinguished in the nation. It includes 16 Nobel laureates, 4 Pulitzer Prize winners, 21 National Medal of Science winners, 132 members of the National Academy of Sciences, 223 members of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, 80 members of the National Academy of Engineering, and 23 members of the National Academy of Education. Yet beyond their array of honors, what truly distinguishes Stanford faculty is their commitment to sharing knowledge with their students. The great majority of professors teach undergraduates both in introductory lecture classes and in small advanced seminars.

Currently 13,900 students, of which 6,500 are undergraduates, live and study on campus. About 40 percent come from California, but all 50 states and approximately 100 countries are represented as well. Among undergraduates, 44 percent are African American, Asian American, Hispanic or Native American. Like the faculty, the Stanford student body is distinguished. Approximately 10 students apply to Stanford for every place in the freshman class. Eighty-four Stanford students have been named Rhodes Scholars, 66 have been named Marshall Scholars, and 48 have been named Truman Scholars. Nearly 90 percent of graduating seniors plan to attend graduate or professional schools. Stanford students also shine in a tremendous array of activities outside the classroom – from student government to music, theater, and journalism. Through the Haas Center for Public Service, students participate in dozens of community service activities, such as tutoring programs for children in nearby East Palo Alto, the Hunger Project, and the Arbor Free Clinic.

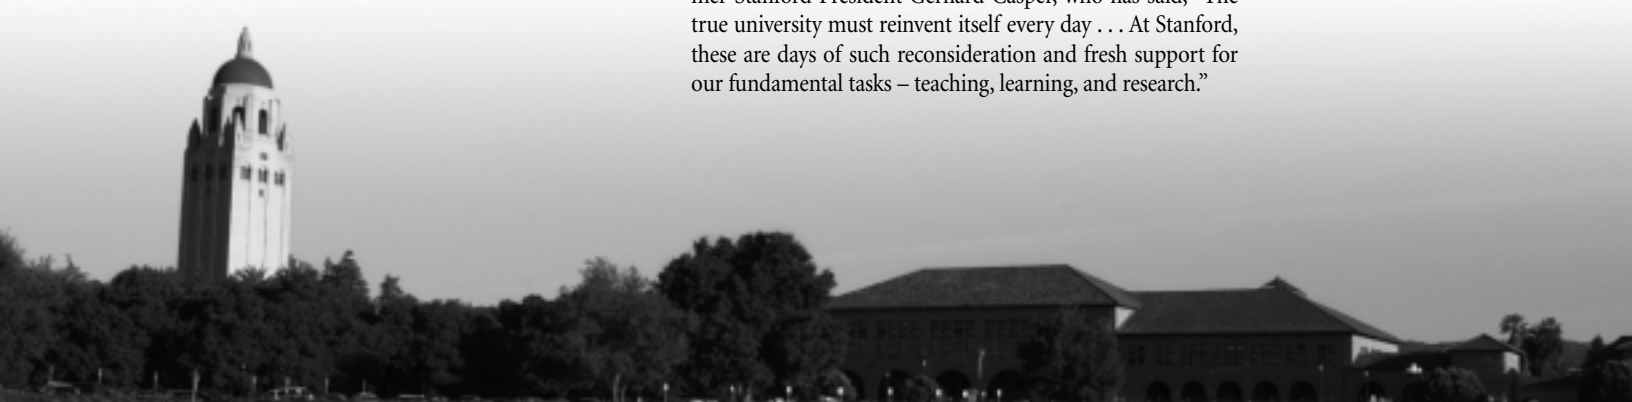

In the athletic arena, Stanford students have enjoyed tremendous success as well. Stanford fields teams in 34 Division I varsity sports – equally divided between men's and women's teams. Of Stanford's 101 national team titles, 50 have been captured since 1990, by far the most in the nation. Thirty-eight of Stanford's athletes and coaches participated in the 1992 Olympics in Barcelona, 49 competed in Atlanta at the 1996 Games, 34 represented Stanford at the 2000 Games in Sydney – by far the most of any university in the nation – and 42 Stanford athletes competed at the 2004 Games in Athens. Intramural and club sports are also popular; over 1,000 students take part in the club sports program, while participation in the intramural program has reached 9,000, with many students active in more than one sport.

Looking Ahead

In her address to the Board of Trustees, in 1904, Jane Stanford said, "... Let us not be afraid to outgrow old thoughts and ways, and dare to think on new lines as to the future of the work under our care." Her thoughts echo in the words of former Stanford President Gerhard Casper, who has said, "The true university must reinvent itself every day ... At Stanford, these are days of such reconsideration and fresh support for our fundamental tasks – teaching, learning, and research."

Stanford University still enjoys the original 8,100 acres of grassy fields, eucalyptus groves, and rolling hills that were the Stanfords' generous legacy.

Beyond the Campus

San Francisco Bay Area

Gateway to the San Francisco Bay Area and Beyond

From bustling cosmopolitan cities to quiet coastal retreats, the San Francisco Bay Area is incomparable. First-class attractions, world-class athletics, cultural diversity, remarkable skylines and breathtaking views make this region one of the world's most popular destinations.

And at the hub of this great region is Stanford University, located within an hour's drive of San Francisco to the north, Silicon Valley to the south and the coastal cities which line the Pacific Ocean to the west.

San Francisco has been named the world's top city twice and the country's top city on seven occasions. Surrounded by three sides of the Pacific Ocean and San Francisco Bay, San Francisco's compact 46 square miles crowd the tip of the San Francisco Peninsula. "The City" has a population of 730,000 and is the centerpiece of the San Francisco Bay Area, which is the nation's fifth largest metropolitan region and registers a population of over six million and hosts over 16 million visitors each year.

The City is a cultural wonderland, an ethnic treasure chest where custom, tradition and history are preserved, celebrated and shared. From the vibrant counterculture in Haight-Ashbury to the young and glamorous tech survivors in their South of Market lofts, San Francisco is a golden dream come true.

Visitors and residents of San Francisco have a playground of diversity at their fingertips. Fisherman's Wharf, a must-see for all, includes waterfront marketplaces such as PIER 39, The Cannery and Ghiradelli Square. Golden Gate Park, Chinatown, North Beach, Union Square, Pacific Bell Park, the Embarcadero Center and, world famous cable cars and trolleys are just an example of what The City has to offer. The Golden Gate Bridge, San Francisco's signature landmark, looms as the gateway to the City by the Bay.

San Francisco Bay is renowned for excellent conditions for both boating and windsurfing.

Pebble Beach on the Monterey Peninsula near Carmel.

To the south of Stanford are Santa Clara and San Jose, the anchors to the Silicon Valley. Computer firms and software companies can be found throughout the region, which is considered the leader among the world's high technology industry. Lest you think that the valley is all business, though, spend a day at Paramount's Great America, delve into the wonders of technology at the Tech Museum of Innovation or explore the Winchester Mystery House.

One of the world's great stretches of coastline is located within a short drive from Stanford University. To the south is the Monterey Peninsula, which includes the picturesque coastal towns of Monterey, Carmel and Santa Cruz. The Monterey Bay Aquarium, Cannery Row and 17-Mile Drive along Pebble Beach are musts for visitors.

And if you bring your golf clubs, some of most famous golf courses can be found on the Monterey Peninsula, including Pebble Beach, Spyglass Hill and Cypress Point. The Beach Boardwalk, which features a historic wooden roller coaster, is located along the coast in Santa Cruz.

Further north along the coast is Half Moon Bay, Princeton-by-the-Bay, San Francisco and Marin County, located just across the Golden Gate Bridge. A short ferryboat ride past Alcatraz Island are the coastal towns of Tiburon, Larkspur and Sausalito.

Stanford Athletics Home of Champions

“Home of Champions.” Those are the bywords for the Stanford University Athletic Department.

And for good reason. No athletic department in the country can boast of the kind of success that Stanford has accomplished since the 1980’s. NCAA team champions. NCAA individual champions. Olympic medalists. Stanford University athletes have been all over the world capturing championships.

The statistics speak for themselves: Stanford University has won 73 NCAA team championships since 1980, the most in the nation; Cardinal athletes have won 50 NCAA championships since 1990 – again the most in the nation. Stanford has brought home 29 NCAA championship trophies the past seven years, including an unprecedented six NCAA team titles in 1996-97. In 1991-92, Stanford athletes took home 29 individual NCAA titles – an NCAA record. Cardinal athletes won 21 individual championships during the 1992-93 season, the second most in history.

Even more impressive is Stanford’s string of 11 consecutive NACDA Directors’ Cup titles (1995-05). The award honors the nation’s top overall athletic program and with 11 straight victories in the competition, it is no wonder Stanford is considered the dominant athletic program in the nation.

Stanford captured its 11th straight Directors’ Cup in 2004-05. The Cardinal won a total of three national team crowns (two NCAA) in synchronized swimming (U.S. Collegiate), women’s tennis and women’s volleyball. Stanford had a total of 16 Top 10 finishes with lightweight crew, women’s cross country, men’s swimming, women’s swimming, men’s water polo and women’s water polo joining the national champions in the Top Five. The Cardinal also picked up nine individual national titles (seven NCAA) and 13 team conference championships.

Stanford has now won at least one NCAA team championship for 28 straight years. Cardinal teams have also won four or more NCAA team titles in a single year nine times, an NCAA best.

All totaled, Stanford has won 101 collegiate team titles (90 NCAA championships) and 391 NCAA individual titles. Cardinal women have won an NCAA-best 33 team championships while men’s teams have captured 57 NCAA team titles, third-best in the nation. Overall, Stanford’s 90 NCAA team championships rank second in the nation.

In the last 12 years (since 1993-94), Stanford has claimed 41 national team championships and 37 NCAA team titles – the best in the country.

The best athletic year in school history arguably came in 1996-97 when Cardinal teams set an NCAA record by winning six NCAA team championships in a single academic year: men’s and women’s cross country; men’s and women’s volleyball; and men’s and women’s tennis. Nine other teams finished in the Top Four nationally, including second-place finishes in women's swimming, men's swimming, men's water polo and women's synchronized swimming. Stanford also posted third-place finishes in women's basketball, baseball and fencing, as well as fourth place finishes in women's golf and women's water polo. In addition, the Stanford co-ed sailing team added a ICYRA national championship.

The 1996-97 school year also saw the Cardinal football team advance to the Sun Bowl, the women's basketball team return to the Final Four, the baseball team qualify for the College World Series and the men's basketball team advance to the Sweet Sixteen of the NCAA Tournament for the first time since it won the 1942 NCAA title.

Not only has the Cardinal won an NCAA record six NCAA team championships in a single season (1996-97), but it has also won five NCAA titles in a single year on three occasions: 1991-92, '94-95 and '97-98. Cardinal teams have won four championships in a single academic year on five occasions: 1985-86, '86-87, '92-93, '93-94 and 2001-02.

Stanford has won 173 conference or regional titles since 1991, again the best in the country. Cardinal teams won a record 18 conference or regional championships in 1998-99 – by far the best performance of any school in the nation.

Another memorable moment came in 1999-2000 when the Cardinal football, men's basketball and baseball teams won at least a share of their respective Pac-10 titles for the first time in school history.

Stanford has simply dominated in several sports. The Cardinal men's tennis team has won 17 NCAA titles while the women's squad has hauled in 15 national titles. Other programs to have brought in at least five national titles include men's water polo (11), women's swimming (9), men's swimming (8), men's golf (7) and women's volleyball (6).

Stanford has also enjoyed unequalled success in Olympic competition. Stanford was represented by 43 affiliates at the most recent Olympic Games that took place in 2004 in Athens, Greece. The Cardinal totaled 17 medals (three gold, seven silver, seven bronze).

At the 2000 Summer Games in Sydney, Australia, Stanford was represented by a total of 34 athletes and coaches. The Cardinal contingent won a total of 10 medals – four gold, three silver and three bronze.

At the 1996 Games in Atlanta, Stanford placed 49 coaches and athletes on Olympic teams, including three head United States Olympic coaches (Tara VanDerveer, women's basketball; Richard Quick, women's swimming; Skip Kenney, men's swimming). Stanford athletes accounted for 16 gold medals, one silver and one bronze in Atlanta.

At the 1992 Games in Barcelona, Cardinal athletes earned 19 medals – 10 gold, four silver and five bronze. If Stanford were a country, it would've placed 13th in the world with its 19 medals and ninth with 10 golds. Thirty-eight Stanford-affiliated athletes and coaches participated in Barcelona while 41 members of the Cardinal family took part in the 1988 Olympic Games in Seoul, Korea.

Olympic gold medalists are numerous on The Farm. Former Cardinal standout Bob Mathias won back-to-back Olympic decathlon gold medals in 1948 and '52, while swimmers Pablo Morales, Jenny Thompson, Summer Sanders, Janet Evans and Misty Hyman have become household names in the swimming world.

Morales, who helped Stanford win three straight NCAA team championships (1985-87), won three medals at the 1984 Games in Los Angeles (one gold, two silver) and two more gold medals at the 1992 Games in Barcelona. Evans won three golds in the 1988 Games in Seoul, and one gold and one silver in Barcelona, while Sanders won four medals in Barcelona; two gold, one silver and one bronze. Thompson is the most decorated athlete in Olympic history with 12 medals (eight gold, three silver, one bronze). Hyman added her name to the list of Stanford swimming greats by winning the 2000 Olympic gold medal in the 200 meter butterfly to pull off one of the biggest upsets of the Sydney Olympiad.

A list of the great student-athletes in the history of Stanford Athletics would be difficult to even come close to compiling but a few of the great names in the amazing history of Stanford Athletics include Tom Watson and Tiger Woods (golf); Tim Mayotte, John McEnroe and Roscoe Tanner (men's tennis); Kristin Klein, Ogonna Nnamani, Kim Oden and Logan Tom (women's volleyball); Kristin Folk (women's basketball/volleyball); Jack McDowell and Mike Mussina (baseball); Julie Foudy (women's soccer); Hank Luisetti, Brevin Knight and Mark Madsen (men's basketball); Jennifer Azzi and Kate Starbird (women's basketball); Jim Plunkett, John Elway and Troy Walters (football); Debi Thomas (figure skating); Eric Heiden (speed skating) and the great Ernie Nevers (football); just to name a few.

It's no wonder Stanford University is often referred to as the "NCAA's Champion of Champions."

Stanford's National Titles Home of Champions

The women's tennis team has won three NCAA titles in the past four seasons.

NCAA championships are commonplace at Stanford University. Cardinal teams have won NCAA championships at an unprecedented rate, including a national-best 73 since 1980 and 50 titles since 1990. Stanford has won at least one NCAA team championship for 29 consecutive years and has won at least four national titles in a single season nine times – again an NCAA best.

Stanford has won 18 national titles in men's tennis, 15 in women's tennis, 11 in men's water polo, nine in women's swimming, eight in men's swimming and seven in men's golf, among others. Nine Cardinal teams have won national championships.

Stanford Athletics has won 101 national championships. In NCAA competition, Cardinal teams have won 90 team titles, including 57 men's championships and an NCAA-best 33 women's titles.

Stanford Stadium

Home of Stanford Football to Undergo Renovation

Stanford Stadium has been the home of Cardinal football for the last 84 years and after the 2005 season the facility, originally constructed in 1921, will undergo an extensive $85 million dollar renovation that will also make it one of the top college football stadiums in the nation in addition to having one of the most prestigious histories.

The plan for a renovated Stanford Stadium with a goal to make it a more intimate sporting venue with modern amenities was approved by the university's Board of Trustees in June of 2005. The plan includes bringing the seating areas much closer to the action with the elimination of approximately 30,000 seats and modernizing almost all facilities housed within the stadium, among other improvements.

The renovation will be another chapter in the story of a stadium that has hosted not only Stanford football games but some of the world's greatest sporting events, including Olympic soccer, Super Bowl XIX, men's World Cup Soccer, women's World Cup Soccer, the historic U.S.A.-U.S.S.R Track Meet and the U.S. Olympic Track & Field Trials.

Stanford Stadium made history by hosting Super Bowl XIX on January 20, 1985, to become the first college stadium to host a Super Bowl when 84,059 fans watched Bill Walsh and his San Francisco 49ers dominate the Miami Dolphins in a 38-16 victory. MVP Joe Montana completed 24-of-35 for 331 yards and three TDs in leading his team to its second World Championship in four years.

Other highlights in the venue included nine Olympic soccer matches, including six preliminary matches, two quarterfinal matches and one semifinal match in 1984 when 465,000 fans jammed Stanford Stadium to witness the world's best soccer players.

The eyes of the world were again focused on Stanford Stadium in late June and early July of 1994 as the largest sporting event in the world came to The Farm with the arrival of World Cup Soccer in the United States for the first time ever. Almost 500,000 fans and a worldwide television audience witnessed six matches at Stanford Stadium – four first round matches, one second round match and one quarterfinal match.

In 1999, Stanford Stadium hosted a soccer doubleheader on July 4 that included a Women's World Cup semifinal match between the United States and Brazil. The game was followed by a Major League Soccer matchup between the San Jose Clash and the D.C. United.

One memorable non-athletic event that was held in the facility was the delivery of 31st President Herbert Hoover's acceptance speech on August 12, 1928. Hoover was the manager of Stanford's first football team.

The largest crowd ever to witness an event at Stanford was the audience at the 1935 Big Game. The attendance that day was an over-capacity 94,000, all of whom witnessed Stanford's 13-0 win over California. The Indians (later to become the Cardinal) went on to capture the 1935 Rose Bowl by defeating SMU.

Initially sparked by a feud with the University of California to see which school could complete a new football facility sooner, the construction of Stanford Stadium was accomplished in just over four months. The original design, undertaken by engineering professors

Stanford Stadium will undergo an extensive $85 million dollar renovation following the 2005 season that will modernize the facility and make major improvements to nearly every area.

Stanford Stadium was the site of Super Bowl XIX on January 19, 1985, when the San Francisco 49ers defeated the Miami Dolphins, 38-16.

Charles Wing, Charles Marz and William Durand, called for a 66-row, U-shaped structure. Seating capacity in the original stadium was 60,000, second only to the Yale Bowl at the time. The cost of construction, estimated at $200,000, was underwritten by alumni subscriptions and the gate receipts from the 1921 Big Game against California. Alumni subscriptions of $100 carried with them the privilege of buying choice seats, at discount, to all intercollegiate events for the next 15 years. Later, this right was extended to a lifetime guarantee. Over $100,000 was raised in this fashion.

The first game held in the new stadium, appropriately enough, pitted Stanford against the University of California on November 19, 1921. Although the Golden Bears, who later went on to win the Rose Bowl that year, spoiled Stanford's home opener by registering a 42-7 win, Stanford did manage to score the first touchdown in history on the newly christened field.

Continually undergoing renovation, the Stadium eventually grew to its present-day capacity of 85,500. In 1925, an additional 10,200 seats were added to the facility, partially closing the horseshoe-shaped structure. An unintentional by-product of this operation was the creation of Sunken Diamond, the Stanford baseball stadium, formed by the removal of dirt needed to fill the Stadium's new embankment. In 1927, 14 additional rows of seats were added, bringing the number of present total of rows to 80.

Additional renovations were undertaken in 1960 (the incorporation of a press box), 1973 (tunnel entrances on the west side), and 1978 (installation of a Tartan Track and the north and south scoreboards). On January 20, 1985, Super Bowl XIX brought with it further renovation of the press box as well as construction of brand new locker room facilities, officials' dressing rooms, a ticket complex and additional restrooms.

World Cup Soccer in 1994 provided Stanford Stadium with more renovations, including expanding the lower level of the G.A. "Dick" Richards Press Box, installing aluminum bench seating throughout the stadium and reducing the crown on the playing field.

The stadium's natural turf field, named the Louis W. Foster Family Field, is considered to be one of the finest playing surfaces in the country. It is composed of a mixture of rye and Bermuda grass. During football season, grass height is maintained at an even three quarters of an inch. The addition of sand every other year increases absorption of rainwater and provides for natural drainage more effectively than any other surface in the country. The ability of the field to absorb wetness allows for play under conditions that would force many other stadiums to reschedule their events.

In addition to the Super Bowl and Olympic soccer, Stanford Stadium has served as the site of numerous other events – athletic and non-athletic alike. The stadium once hosted the Shrine East-West College All-Star Football Game, played in January of each year. It has also been the site of a host of national and international track and field competitions, including the United States Olympic Trials in 1960. In 1962, a two-day meet between teams from the United States and the Soviet Union drew more than 150,000 spectators to Stanford Stadium.

Stanford Stadium is the largest privately owned college football facility in the United States and has played host to The Super Bowl, World Cup and Olympic Soccer, and numerous college football games.

Since Stanford University began playing football in 1891, Cardinal football players have had the opportunity to experience the best in intercollegiate football while at the same time earning one of the most prestigious undergraduate degrees in the world.

Eighteen Stanford football players have been drafted in the first round of the NFL Draft. Pro football greats Jim Plunkett, John Elway, James Lofton, John Brodie and Frankie Albert are just a few of Stanford's first round selections.

Bob Mathias, whom many consider to be the greatest athlete of all time, became a U.S. Congressman from California following his playing days at Stanford. Mathias, of course, won the 1948 and '52 Olympic gold medals in the decathlon. He played football at Stanford in 1951 and '52, and was a four-year member of the track team.

Stanford football players have gone on to impressive careers in the law profession as well.

Two-time letterwinner James Ukropina, three-year letterwinner Ray Anderson, First-Team All-American Chris Burford, four-year letterwinner Larry Reynolds and three-year letterwinners Rodney Gilmore and John Finley are just some examples.

Ukropina, who was a Stanford letterwinner in 1957 and '58, went on to a distinguished career as an attorney. He is a former member of the Board of Trustees at Stanford University. Anderson, a letterwinner from 1973-75, received his bachelor's degree in Political Science from Stanford in 1976 and a law degree from Harvard. Anderson, who was recently ranked on Sports Illustrated's list of the "Most Influential Minorities in Sports", was a successful sports agent for nearly two decades before being named Executive Vice President and Chief Administrative Officer of the Atlanta Falcons in 2002.

Burford, a First-Team All-American receiver in 1959 and a member of the College Football Hall of Fame, went on to play eight seasons in professional football with the Kansas City Chiefs. Burford earned his Law degree while playing professional football.

Gilmore, along with practicing law in the San Francisco Bay Area, is also a television commentator for ESPN. He served as the Chair of the Stanford Athletic Board from 1997-98.

Stanford football players have made their mark in the business world as well. Phil Satre, a three-year letterwinner from 1969-71 and a member of Stanford's back-to-back Rose Bowl championship teams, is currently Chairman of the Board of Harrah's Entertainment. Bill Kellar, a four-time letterwinner (1974-77), is currently the Director of Football Sports Marketing at Nike.

Hillary Shockley, a three-year letterwinner and member of Stanford's back-to-back Rose Bowl teams in 1970 and '71, is currently the President of his own company, A/R Capital. Randy Vataha, a First-Team All-Pac-10 pick in 1970, helped lead Stanford to a conference title and Rose Bowl victory before playing seven seasons in the NFL. Vataha is currently the Chief Executive Officer of Game Plan Inc., an investment banking company for professional sports teams.

Blaine Nye was a First-Team All-Pac-8 selection who went on to play nine seasons in the NFL with the Dallas Cowboys, including three Super Bowl games. Nye received his MBA from Stanford in 1974 and earned his Ph.D. in Financial Economics from Stanford following his playing days. He is currently President of the Stanford Consulting Group. Chuck Evans, a four-year letterwinner from 1976-79, played on two bowl game championship teams during his career. He is currently a Senior Vice President for RBC Dain Rauscher.

Former Stanford All-America Gene Washington, who played 11 seasons in the NFL, is currently the Director of Football Operations for the National Football League.

Stanford football players have touched the academic field as well. Ken Shropshire is presently a Professor and Chairman of the Legal Studies department at the Wharton School of Business, while Jerry

Gene Washington, Director of Football Operations, NFL

A Heisman Trophy winner, Rose Bowl Game MVPs, All-Americans, bowl game champions, attorneys, doctors, professors, and CEOs are just some of the bywords that describe the Stanford football player.

Bob Mathias, two-time Olympic Decathlon Champ

James Lofton and his son David during the 2003 Pro Football Hall of Fame Ceremonies. James parlayed his success in the NFL to a career in broadcasting.

Waldvogel is a professor of Biology at Clemson University and Dale Rubin is a founding Professor of the Appalachian (Va.) School of Law, to name a few.

The Stanford football program is also well represented in the medical profession. Joe St. Geme, a 1980 Stanford graduate with a degree in Biology, is currently an Assistant Professor of Pediatrics at the Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis. Ron Inge, a four-year letterwinner, received a degree from Stanford in Human Biology in 1977 and is currently the Chief Dental Officer at Aetna Dental.

Milt McColl, who played eight seasons in the NFL, was a four-year letterwinner at Stanford. He earned his M.D. at Stanford in 1988 and is currently Vice President/General Manager at Boston Scientific Corporation.

Former Cardinal player and coach Paul Wiggin, after a tremendous 11-year career in the NFL and stints as a head coach in the NFL at Stanford, is currently the Coordinator of Pro Scouting for the Minnesota Vikings and was recently inducted in the College Football Hall of Fame. Former Stanford and NFL Hall-of-Famer James Lofton, who had a successful career in the broadcasting industry, is currently an assistant coach with the San Diego Chargers.

The list is long and the accomplishments impressive. Success on and off the field continues to define the Stanford University football player.

Stanford Football in the Community

The Stanford Football program continues to be dedicated to "giving back" to the local community.

The Stanford football team is committed to an active community outreach program that involves coaches, players and staff with different groups in the Bay Area. The Stanford Football Program has won the Athletic Department's Thomas Ford Award each of the past two years. The award is presented to the team that "demonstrates a special commitment to the community." During the 2004-05 academic year, Stanford football was involved in the following community events:

- Stanford University Community Day
- Stanford Football Youth Clinic
- Special Olympics at Stanford
- Read Across America Program
- Boys and Girls Club of the Peninsula
- Lucile Packard Children's Hospital
- KIPP Foundation of Oakland
- Youth Sports Festival at Stanford
- Student-Athletes and Kids United (SAKU)

Two-Sport Athletes

Two-Sport Athletes Success Beyond Football

Stanford football players have not limited their success to the gridiron, with NCAA and Olympic champions rounding out an impressive list of multi-sport athletes.

Stanford University has a long and storied tradition of two-sport athletes. Throughout the years, several Cardinal football players have not only participated in another sport, but have earned All-America honors, won NCAA championships and set school and national records.

From the early days of the great Ernie Nevers, who played baseball at Stanford and went on to play professionally with the St. Louis Browns, to future NFL Hall of Famer John Elway, who played in the New York Yankees Stanford football players have been given the opportunity to shine in other sports. Some other great Stanford football players who starred in another sport include Bob Mathias, a two-time Olympic Decathlon Gold Medalist, Mark Marquess, Stanford's head baseball coach since 1977, Darrin Nelson, the Cardinal's all-time leading rusher and track standout, James Lofton an NCAA champion in the long jump, John Lynch, who was a pitcher in the Florida Marlins organization, and Chad Hutchinson, starting quarterback in the NFL and a former major league pitcher.

NFL Hall of Fame receiver James Lofton was the 1978 NCAA long jump champion for the Stanford track & field team.

Two-time Olympic gold medal decathlete Bob Mathias

John Elway was drafted by the New York Yankees prior to his Hall of Fame NFL career.

All-time rushing leader Darrin Nelson is still among Stanford's list of fastest sprinters.

John Lynch was drafted by the Florida Marlins as a pitcher before his Pro Bowl NFL career.

Two-Sport Athletes

2005 STANFORD FOOTBALL

John Paye was a starter at guard for Stanford's basketball team.

Teyo Johnson earned honorable mention All-Pac-10 Freshman honors in basketball and was drafted by the Oakland Raiders.

Chad Hutchinson played baseball for the St. Louis Cardinals and football for the Dallas Cowboys and Chicago Bears.

Two sources provide scholarship funds for Stanford's student-athletes: the Athletic Department's scholarship endowment and the Buck/Cardinal Club. Together they provide upwards of $12 million in financial aid.

Endowed scholarships are large sums of money that have been invested in the University's endowment and generate significant interest income each year. A portion of the income is spent on student aid and the remainder is reinvested in the principal.

Annual scholarships are expendable, annual gifts to the Buck/Cardinal Club that pay the education costs of a single student-athlete for three quarters of study.

Ted Leland
The Jaquish & Kenninger
Director of Athletics

During his 14 years at Stanford, Dr. Ted Leland has not only led the Stanford Athletic Department to unprecedented success both on and off the playing field, but he has earned the reputation as one of the top athletic administrators in the nation.

Named The Jaquish & Kenninger Director of Athletics at Stanford University on June 7, 1991, Leland has been the guiding force in leading an athletics program that was recently voted as “the most admired collegiate athletic program in the nation.” Consider the facts: Under his watch, Stanford has won the prestigious Directors’ Cup, emblematic of the top athletic program in the nation, for the past 11 years, has won more NCAA championships than any other school in the nation, enjoyed tremendous success in fundraising, improved Stanford’s athletic facilities and managed the Cardinal’s 34-sport intercollegiate athletic program to conference and national titles at an unparalleled rate.

Since his arrival on The Farm, Stanford has won 50 national team championships and 173 conference championships, including an NCAA record six national titles in 1996-97. Cardinal teams consistently compete for the national championship in virtually every sport every year. In 2004-05 alone, Stanford had 26 programs finish in the Top-25 nationally, including 10 in the Top 5 and 16 in the Top 10.

In the area of fundraising, Stanford has reached heights never before known under Leland. The Athletic Department has raised over $270 million in private donations, while its assets and endowments have grown from $52 million to $374.9 million during Leland’s tenure. In addition, approximately $185 million in new or renovated athletic facilities have been completed and funded.

Stanford has won 50 National Team Championships since Leland’s arrival on The Farm in the Fall of 1991, including a NCAA record six national titles in 1996-97. Stanford has also won the United States Sports Academy Directors’ Cup Trophy, which is emblematic of the top athletic program in the nation, for each of the past 11 years.

His peers and colleagues have honored Leland on several occasions throughout his career. Recently, he was presented the Dick Enberg Award by CoSida in 2004. The award is presented to “a person whose actions and commitment have furthered the meaning and reach of the Academic All-America programs and/or student-athletes while promoting the values of education and academics.” In 2000-01, Leland was honored by NACDA (National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics) and the Street & Smith’s Sports Business Journal as the Athletic Director of the Year. The award recognized an Athletic Director for demonstration of commitment to higher education and student-athletes, continuous teamwork, loyalty and excellence, and the ability to inspire individuals or groups to higher levels of accomplishments.

As one of the nation’s most respected athletic administrators, Leland has served on numerous national committees throughout his career. He is currently a member of the University of Pacific Board of Regents and the Board of Directors of Opportunities Industrialization Center West (a non-profit community-based job training center on the Menlo Park-East Palo Alto border). He is a member of the Division I NCAA Committee on Infractions and the NACDA Executive Committee, while serving on various other Pac-10 and NCAA committees.

In June of 2002, Leland was named a co-chairman of the United States Secretary of Education’s Commission on Opportunity in Athletics. The 15-member panel examined ways of strengthening enforcement of Title IX (the 30-year-old anti-discrimination law) and expanding opportunities to ensure fairness for all college athletes.

The Arrillaga Family Sports Center is home to Stanford’s 34 intercollegiate sports, which have captured 50 national titles during Ted Leland’s tenure.

A familiar sight for Stanford Athletics: Athletic Director Ted Leland accepting the United States Sports Academy Directors’ Cup as the top athletic program in the nation.

Leland recently concluded a two-year term as Chairman of the NCAA Management Council. He was a member of the Management Council for eight years.

After serving as Stanford’s Director of Athletics for 12 years, Leland was granted a “Special Research Leave” from his post in the spring of 2003. During an 11-week absence, Leland was a Distinguished Visiting Scholar at the Hoover Institution on campus, conducted research on a book, and wrote and delivered several speeches on national issues related to intercollegiate athletics.

As Stanford’s fifth athletic director, Leland succeeded Andy Geiger (1979-90), Joe Ruetz (1972-78), Chuck Taylor (1963-71) and Al Masters (1925-63). Leland directs a department that includes 34 intercollegiate varsity teams – 15 men’s, 18 women’s and one coed – plus the physical education department, intramurals, club sports, open recreation and the Stanford Golf Course. The department has an annual budget of approximately $58 million.

Prior to his arrival at Stanford, Leland held two other Athletic Director positions. He was the A.D. at the University of the Pacific from 1989-91 and at Dartmouth College from 1983-89. His other career stops included Northwestern University, where he was a Senior Associate Athletic Director from 1981-83 and the University of Houston as Assistant Athletic Director from 1979-81. He was an assistant football coach and instructor of physical education at Stanford in 1978-79.

Leland grew up in Northern California, graduated from Hayward High School and later attended Chabot College. He earned both his Bachelor’s (1970) and Master’s (1972) degrees from the University of the Pacific. He added a Ph.D. from Stanford in 1982 in education/sports psychology.

While an undergraduate at UOP, Leland earned first team all PCAA honors as a defensive end in 1969. He later coached football at UOP, Stanford and East Tennessee State, and rose to the position of defensive coordinator.

In addition to his work in athletic administration, Leland has held the position of “adjunct professor” at Dartmouth College, UOP and Stanford, teaching courses in Sports Psychology and the Philosophy of Sport. He is currently a Distinguished Visiting Scholar at the Hoover Institution at Stanford.

Leland, 56, and his wife, Stefanie, live on the Stanford campus and have two children: Amanda, 23, and Bo, 21.

Prior to 1972, Stanford's teams were known as the Indians, as seen on All-America baseball player Mark Marquess' uniform.

Athletics Logo, University Seal & The Stanford Tree

The official Stanford Athletics logo features a block "S" with a stylized tree (left). However, on some uniforms, such as on the football helmet, the block "S" alone is used (right).

The official Stanford Seal features El Palo Alto (the tree) and a German phrase which translates to "the winds of freedom blow".

The "Stanford Tree" is a member of the Leland Stanford Junior University Marching Band and is not an official school mascot.

Mascot and Nickname

The unique origins of Stanford's mascot and have a history that dates back to the University's founding in 1891. While the Cardinal has always been one of the school's official colors, the nickname has gone through a series of changes, student votes, controversy and confusion.

Since 1981, Stanford has been known as the Cardinal. Stanford was known as the "Indians" from 1930-72. As for the mascot, Stanford does not officially have one. The "Tree," which is a member of the Stanford Band, has been mistaken as the school's mascot, but it is not.

Below is a brief history of the nickname, the mascot and the school colors:

The Nickname

The nickname for Stanford is the Cardinal – in reference to one of the school colors (and is therefore in the singular). Stanford's history with its nickname began on March 19, 1891 when Stanford beat Cal in the first Big Game. While Stanford did not have an official nickname, the day after the Big Game local newspapers picked up the "cardinal" theme and used it in the headlines.

Stanford did not have an "official" nickname until Indians was adopted in 1930. For years prior, the Indian had been part of the Stanford athletic tradition. Perhaps it grew out of the fact that Cal's symbol was the Bear, or it may have come from the large Indian population of the area, or from Indian paraphernalia in abundance in the late 1800's. Whatever the origin, it was accepted by sportswriters and gradually gained wide recognition.

Stanford officially adopted the Indian nickname on Nov. 25, 1930 after a unanimous vote by the Executive Committee for the Associated Students. The Indian had long been considered the symbol of Stanford before the official vote, although its origins are only speculation.

The resolution that was passed read: "Whereas the Indian has long been unofficially recognized as the symbol of Stanford and its spirit, and whereas there has never been any official designation of a Stanford symbol, be it hereby resolved that the Executive Committee adopt the Indian as the symbol of Stanford."

The Indian symbol was eventually dropped in 1972 following meetings between Stanford native American students and President Richard Lyman. The 55 students, supported by the other 358 American Indians enrolled in California colleges, felt the mascot was an insult to their culture and heritage. As a result of these talks and the ensuing publicity, the Stanford Student Senate voted 18-4 to drop the Indian symbol, and Lyman agreed.

The first student referendum on the issue was held in May, 1972, and it resulted in a vote of 1,755 for and 1,298 against restoring the Indian. The second vote, on Dec. 3-4, 1975, was 885 for and 1,915 against.

There was a move to reinstate the Indian as the school mascot in 1975. The debate was put to vote along with new suggestions: Robber Barons, Sequoias, Trees, Cardinals, Railroaders, Spikes, and Huns. None of the suggestions were accepted.

In 1978, another group comprised of 225 varsity athletes from 18 teams, started a petition for the mascot to be the griffin – a mythological animal with the body and hind legs of a lion and head and wings of an eagle. The University moved two griffin statues from the Children's Hospital to a grassy area between Encina Gym and Angel Field. The campaign for the Griffins failed.

From 1972 until November 17, 1981, Stanford's official nickname was Cardinals, in reference to one of the school colors, not the bird.

Nine years after the Indian was dropped, Stanford had still not decided on a new mascot. President Donald Kennedy declared in 1981 that all Stanford athletic teams will be represented and symbolized exclusively by the color cardinal. "While various other mascots have been suggested and then allowed to wither, the color has continued to serve us well, as it has for 90 years. It is a rich and vivid metaphor for the very pulse of life."

The Mascot

There is no official mascot at Stanford University. The "Tree," which is a member of the Stanford Band, is representative of El Palo Alto, the Redwood tree which is the logo of the city of Palo Alto. Since Stanford University and Palo Alto are almost inextricably intertwined in interests and location, it is a natural outgrowth of this relationship. The tree still exists and stands by the railroad bridge beside San Francisquito Creek – it is the site where early explorers first camped when settling the area.

The Color

When Stanford first accepted students in 1891, the student body actually voted for gold as the school's official color, but another student assembly chose Cardinal as the school color. A few days after the vote, local sportswriters picked up the "Cardinal" theme after Stanford defeated Cal in the first Big Game (March 19, 1891). The headlines read, "Cardinal Triumphs O'er Blue and Gold."

Cardinal remained the school color until the 1940's, when rules committees and conferences started regulating jersey colors for home and visiting football teams. Stanford's Board of Athletic Control adopted white as the second color.

Today, Stanford's official school colors are cardinal and white.

Pac-10 Conference The Conference of Champions

With 342 NCAA team titles, the Pacific-10 Conference is clearly the "Conference of Champions".

Entering the 2005-06 season, the Pacific-10 Conference continues to uphold its tradition as the "Conference of Champions." Pac-10 members have claimed an incredible 90 NCAA team titles over the past 10 seasons, for an average of nine championships per academic year.

Even more impressive is the breadth of the Pac-10's success, as those 90 team titles over the past nine seasons have come in 21 different men's and women's sports. The Pac-10 has now led the nation in NCAA Championships 39 of the last 45 years and finished second five times.

Spanning nearly a century of outstanding athletics achievement, the Pac-10 has captured 342 NCAA titles (248 men's, 94 women's), far outdistancing any other NCAA Division I conference in the country.

The Conference's reputation is further proven in the annual Sports Academy Directors' Cup competition, the prestigious award that honors the best overall collegiate athletics programs in the country. Stanford continued its remarkable run in the 2004-05 season by winning its 11th consecutive Directors' Cup. In the 2004-05 competition, three of the Top 10 and seven of the Top 20 Division I programs were Pac-10 members: No. 1 Stanford, No. 3 UCLA, No. 9 USC, No. 12 Arizona State, No. 18 Washington and No. 19 Arizona.

The Pac-10 captured six NCAA titles in 2004-05 (second to only the Big 10) with conference teams winning NCAA championships in four women's and two men's sports. Stanford won two (tennis, volleyball) of the four women's championships by Pac-10 schools, while California (rowing) and UCLA (water polo) picked up one each. UCLA (tennis, water polo) won both of the Pac-10's titles on the men's side. The four NCAA titles won by Pac-10 schools in 2004-05 equaled the four captured by Big 10 women's teams for the most in the nation.

The Pac-10's success in 2004-05 continued the Conference's phenomenal run throughout its history.

On the men's side, Pac-10 members have won 248 NCAA team championships to easily rank tops among NCAA Division I conferences. Individually, the Conference has produced an impressive number of NCAA men's individual champions as well, claiming 1,198 NCAA individual crowns.

On the women's side, the story is much the same. Since the NCAA began conducting women's championships 24 years ago, Pac-10 members have claimed at least four national titles in a single season on 16 occasions. Overall, the Pac-10 has captured 94 NCAA women's crowns to also rank first among NCAA Division I conferences. Pac-10 women athletes shine nationally on an individual basis as well, having captured an unmatched 440 NCAA individual titles.

The roots of the Pacific-10 Conference go back nearly 89 years to December 15, 1915, when the Pacific Coast Conference (PCC) was founded at a meeting at the Oregon Hotel in Portland, Ore. Original membership consisted of four schools – the University of California at Berkeley, the University of Washington, the University of Oregon, and Oregon State College (now Oregon State University). All still are charter members of the Conference.

Pacific Coast Conference play began in 1916. One year later, Washington State College (now Washington State University), was accepted into the Conference, and Stanford University joined in 1918.

In 1922, the PCC expanded to eight teams with the admission of the University of Southern California and the University of Idaho. Montana joined the Conference in 1924, and in 1928, the PCC grew to 10 members with the addition of UCLA.

The Pacific Coast Conference competed as a 10-team league until 1950, with the exception of 1943-45, when World War II curtailed intercollegiate athletic competition to a minimum. In 1950, Montana resigned from the Conference and joined the Mountain States Conference. The PCC continued as a nine-team Conference through 1958.

In 1959, the PCC was dissolved and a new Conference was formed – the Athletic Association of Western Universities. Original AAUW membership consisted of California, Stanford, Southern California, UCLA, and Washington. Washington State became a member in 1962, while Oregon and Oregon State joined in 1964. In 1968, the name Pacific-8 Conference was adopted.

Ten years later, on July 1, 1978, the University of Arizona and Arizona State University were admitted and the Pacific-10 Conference became a reality. In 1986-87, the league took on a new look, expanding to include 10 women's sports.

Currently, the Pac-10 sponsors 11 men's sports and 11 women's sports. Additionally, the Conference is a member of the Mountain Pacific Sports Federation (MPSF) in four other men's sports and two other women's sports.

Edwin N. Atherton was named the Conference's first Commissioner in 1940. He has been succeeded by Victor O. Schmidt (1944), Thomas J. Hamilton (1959), Wiles Hallock (1971), and current Commissioner Thomas C. Hansen in 1983.

The Pacific-10 Conference offices are located 25 miles east of San Francisco in Walnut Creek, Calif.

Pac-10 Bowl Game Arrangements

The Rose Bowl plays host to the BCS National Championship Game this season. Should the Pac-10 champion finish first or second in the final regular season BCS poll, that team would play in the Rose Bowl. If the Pac-10 champion is not one of the top two squads in the final regular season BCS poll, the Tostitos Fiesta Bowl would welcome the Pac-10 winner. The conference also has arrangements with the Pacific Life Holiday, Vitalis Sun, Insight, Pioneer PureVision Las Vegas and Emerald bowls.

Regardless of the disposition of the Pac-10 champion, a second Pac-10 team may be selected for an at-large berth in the Bowl Championship Series in any given year. Pac-10 agreements with its other bowl partners provide for that occurrence. Following is a summary of Pac-10 bowl arrangements and selection procedures for the 2005-06 season:

1. Tostitos Fiesta Bowl

The Pac-10 champion goes to the Tostitos Fiesta Bowl, unless such champion is ranked No. 1 or No. 2 in the final BCS standings at the conclusion of the regular season. In that case, it would play in the BCS National Championship Game in the Rose Bowl.

2. Pacific Life Holiday Bowl

After the Pac-10 champion goes to the Tostitos Fiesta Bowl (or BCS Championship Game), the Pacific Life Holiday Bowl receives the highest remaining team in the Pac-10 standings. If there is a tie for that position, the Pacific Life Holiday Bowl has the right to select from between or among the tied teams.

3. Vitalis Sun Bowl

After the Pac-10 champion goes to the Tostitos Fiesta Bowl (or BCS Championship Game) and a second Pac-10 team to the Pacific Life Holiday Bowl, the Vitalis Sun Bowl receives the highest remaining team in the Pac-10 standings. If there is a tie for that position, the Vitalis Sun Bowl has the right to select from between or among the tied teams.

4. Insight Bowl

After the berths in the Tostitos Fiesta, Pacific Life Holiday and Vitalis Sun bowls are filled, the Insight Bowl receives the highest remaining team in the Pac-10 standings. If there is a tie for that position, the Insight Bowl has the right to select from between or among the tied teams.

5. Pioneer PureVision Las Vegas Bowl

After the berths in the Tostitos Fiesta, Pacific Life Holiday, Vitalis Sun and Insight bowls are filled, the Las Vegas Bowl receives the highest remaining team in the Pac-10 standings. If there is a tie for that position, the Pioneer PureVision Las Vegas Bowl has the right to select from between or among the tied teams.

6. Emerald Bowl

After the berths in the Tostitos Fiesta, Pacific Life Holiday, Vitalis Sun, Insight and PureVision Las Vegas bowls are filled, the Emerald Bowl receives the highest remaining team in the Pac-10 standings. If there is a tie for that position, the Emerald Bowl has the right to select from between or among the tied teams.

Credentials / Broadcasting Arrangements

Requests for press, radio, television and photography credentials for all Stanford home games should be addressed to Kyle McRae, Assistant Media Relations Director, Arrillaga Family Sports Center, Department of Athletics, Stanford University, Stanford, California 94305-6150 or faxed to (650) 725-2957.

Parking

The Press Parking Area is located directly west of the Stanford Stadium Press Box on Galvez Street. A detailed map is enclosed with each parking pass. Parking is on a first-come, first-served basis, so those covering the game should plan to arrive at least one hour before game time to be assured of a parking spot.

Telephones

Arrangements for a telephone in the Stanford press box should be made directly with Stanford Telecommunications (650-725-4357). Those writing on deadline are encouraged to order a line, as a very limited number of lines are available for community use.

Practices

The football practice facility is located directly behind Maples Pavilion, adjacent to the Avery Aquatic Center and Sunken Diamond. All practices are open to fans and media unless otherwise noted. Media passes for field access are necessary and can be obtained by contacting the Stanford Media Relations Office at least 24 hours prior to the requested date. Players and coaches are available to the media for 10 minutes following each practice. Interview requests must be made through Gary Migdol or Kyle McRae of the Media Relations Office.

Interview Policy

To arrange a player or coach interview, please contact the Media Relations Office (Gary Migdol for coaches; Kyle McRae for players), and a time convenient to both parties will be arranged. Player interviews are generally conducted from 1-2 p.m. No player or coach interviews will be granted on Friday or before the game on Saturday.

Stanford on Radio

KNEW (910 am) will serve as the flagship station for all Cardinal games in 2005. Bob Murphy, a familiar name to the Stanford community, will once again handle the color commentary. Murphy, who has been a part of the Stanford broadcast team for over 30 years, is a former Sports Information Director at Stanford and Athletic Director at San Jose State University. Murphy was Stanford's SID during the football team's back-to-back Rose Bowl years in 1971 and '72. He is also the Cardinal's play-by-play announcer for men's basketball radio broadcasts. Ted Robinson returned to The Farm in 1997 to handle the play-by-play duties.

Bob Murphy

Ted Robinson

Robinson, who is also a play-by-play announcer for the New York Mets, was Stanford's play-by-play voice from 1985-87. In addition to his duties at Stanford and with the Mets, Robinson's resume includes: the NCAA men's basketball tournament with CBS, the 1996 Nagano Winter Olympics on CBS, the 2000 Sydney Olympics and the 2004 Athens Olympics on NBC, the U.S. Open tennis tournament on USA Network, the French Open and Wimbledon on NBC, Notre Dame football on SportsChannel America and the Big East Conference Game of the Week, to name a few. Robinson was also a play-by-play announcer for the Minnesota Twins and San Francisco Giants.

KNEW 910 (910 AM in San Francisco)

KNEW 910 is in its second season as the radio home of Stanford Athletics. KNEW 910, which also broadcasts all Cardinal men's basketball games, will serve as the flagship station for the Stanford radio network.

KZSU - 90.1 FM

Stanford student radio station KZSU (90.1 FM) broadcasts all Cardinal football games live to the Stanford community.

Live Internet Radio Broadcasts

All Stanford football games can be heard live on the Internet at www.gostanford.com.

Stanford on Television

Stanford football will receive national, regional and local television exposure during the 2005 campaign. In recent years, Cardinal football games have been televised on ABC, NBC, CBS, ESPN, ESPN2 and Fox Sports Net. This season, Stanford football will be televised to a national broadcast audience on ABC, national cable telecasts on Fox Sports Net and TBS and local coverage on KRON in the Bay Area.
