

On October 1, 1891, the 465 new students who were on hand for opening day ceremonies at Leland Stanford Junior University greeted Leland and Jane Stanford enthusiastically, with a chant they had made up and rehearsed only that morning. Wah-hoo! Wah-hoo! L-S-J-U! Stanford! Its wild and spirited tone symbolized the excitement of this bold adventure. As a pioneer faculty member recalled, "Hope was in every heart, and the presiding spirit of freedom prompted us to dare greatly."

For the Stanford's on that day, the university was the realization of a dream and a fitting tribute to the memory of their only son, who had died of typhoid fever weeks before his sixteenth birthday. Far from the nation's center of culture and unencumbered by tradition or ivy, the new university drew students from all over the country: many from California; some who followed professors hired from other colleges and universities; and some simply seeking adventure in the West. Though there were many difficulties during the first months – housing was inadequate, microscopes and books were late in arriving from the East – the first year foretold greatness. As Jane Stanford wrote in the summer of 1892, "Even our fondest hopes have been realized."

Ideas of "Practical Education"

Governor and Mrs. Stanford had come from families of modest means and had built their way up through a life of hard work. So it was natural that their first thoughts were to establish an institution where young men and women could "grapple successfully with the practicalities of life." As their thoughts matured, these ideas of "practical education" enlarged to the concept of producing cultured and useful citizens who were well-prepared for professional success.

More than one hundred years later, the university still enjoys the original 8,180 acres (almost 13 square miles) of grassy fields, eucalyptus groves, and rolling hills that were the Stanfords' generous legacy, as well as the Quadrangle of "long corridors with their stately pillars" at the center of campus. It is still true, as the philosopher William James said, during his stint as a visiting professor, that the climate is "so friendly ... that every morning wakes one fresh for new amounts of work."

Current Perspectives

In other ways, the university has changed tremendously on its way to recognition as one of the world's great universities. At the hub of a vital and diverse Bay Area, Stanford is an hour's drive south of San Francisco and just a few miles north of the Silicon Valley, an area dotted with computer and high technology firms largely spawned by the university's faculty and graduates. On campus, students and faculty enjoy new libraries, modern laboratories, sports facilities, and comfortable residences. Contemporary sculpture, as well as pieces from the Stanford Museum's extensive collection of sculpture by Auguste Rodin, is placed throughout the campus, providing unexpected pleasures at many turns. At the Stanford Medical Center, world-renowned for its research, teaching, and patient care, scientists and physicians are searching for answers to fundamental questions about health and disease. Ninety miles down the coast, at Stanford's Hopkins Marine Station on the Monterey Bay, scientists are working to better understand the mechanisms of evolution, human development, and ecological systems.

The university is organized into seven schools: Earth Sciences, Education, Engineering, the Graduate School of Business, Humanities and Sciences, Law and Medicine. In addition, there are more than 30 interdisciplinary centers, programs, and research laboratories – including the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace; the Institute for International Studies; the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center; and the Stanford Center for the Study of Families, Children and Youth – where faculty from a wide range of fields bring different perspectives to bear on issues and problems. Stanford's Overseas Studies Program offers students in all fields remarkable opportunities for study abroad, with campuses in Paris, Kyoto, Santiago, Berlin, Oxford, Florence, and Moscow.

Stanford People

By any measure, Stanford's faculty – which numbers approximately 1,700 – is one of the most distinguished in the nation. It includes 16 Nobel laureates, 4 Pulitzer Prize winners, 21 National Medal of Science winners, 132 members of the National Academy of Sciences, 223 members of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, 80 members of the National Academy of Engineering, and 23 members of the National Academy of Education. Yet beyond their array of honors, what truly distinguishes Stanford faculty is their commitment to sharing knowledge with their students. The great majority of professors teach undergraduates both in introductory lecture classes and in small advanced seminars.

Currently 13,900 students, of which 6,500 are undergraduates, live and study on campus. About 40 percent come from California, but all 50 states and approximately 100 countries are represented as well. Among undergraduates, 44 percent are African American, Asian American, Hispanic or Native American. Like the faculty, the Stanford student body is distinguished. Approximately 10 students apply to Stanford for every place in the freshman class. Eighty-four Stanford students have been named Rhodes Scholars, 66 have been named Marshall Scholars, and 48 have been named Truman Scholars. Nearly 90 percent of graduating seniors plan to attend graduate or professional schools. Stanford students also shine in a tremendous array of activities outside the classroom – from student government to music, theater, and journalism. Through the Haas Center for Public Service, students participate in dozens of community service activities, such as tutoring programs for children in nearby East Palo Alto, the Hunger Project, and the Arbor Free Clinic.

In the athletic arena, Stanford students have enjoyed tremendous success as well. Stanford fields teams in 35 Division I varsity sports – equally divided between men's and women's teams. Of Stanford's 104 national team titles, 52 have been captured since 1990, by far the most in the nation. Thirty-eight of Stanford's athletes and coaches participated in the 1992 Olympics in Barcelona, 49 competed in Atlanta at the 1996 Games, 34 represented Stanford at the 2000 Games in Sydney – by far the most of any university in the nation – and 42 Stanford athletes competed at the 2004 Games in Athens. Intramural and club sports are also popular; over 1,000 students take part in the club sports program, while participation in the intramural program has reached 9,000, with many students active in more than one sport.

Looking Ahead

In her address to the Board of Trustees, in 1904, Jane Stanford said, "... Let us not be afraid to outgrow old thoughts and ways, and dare to think on new lines as to the future of the work under our care." Her thoughts echo in the words of former Stanford President Gerhard Casper, who has said, "The true university must reinvent itself every day. . . . At Stanford, these are days of such reconsideration and fresh support for our fundamental tasks – teaching, learning, and research."

Stanford University still enjoys the original 8,100 acres of grassy fields, eucalyptus groves, and rolling hills that were the Stanfords' generous legacy.

Beyond the Campus

San Francisco Bay Area

Gateway to the San Francisco Bay Area and Beyond

From bustling cosmopolitan cities to quiet coastal retreats, the San Francisco Bay Area is incomparable. First-class attractions, world-class athletics, cultural diversity, remarkable skylines and breathtaking views make this region one of the world's most popular destinations.

And at the hub of this great region is Stanford University, located within an hour's drive of San Francisco to the north, Silicon Valley to the south and the coastal cities which line the Pacific Ocean to the west.

San Francisco has been named the world's top city twice and the country's top city on seven occasions. Surrounded by three sides of the Pacific Ocean and San Francisco Bay, San Francisco's compact 46 square miles crowd the tip of the San Francisco Peninsula. "The City" has a population of 730,000 and is the centerpiece of the San Francisco Bay Area, which is the nation's fifth largest metropolitan region and registers a population of over six million and hosts over 16 million visitors each year.

The City is a cultural wonderland, an ethnic treasure chest where custom, tradition and history are preserved, celebrated and shared. From the vibrant counterculture in Haight-Ashbury to the young and glamorous tech survivors in their South of Market lofts, San Francisco is a golden dream come true.

Visitors and residents of San Francisco have a playground of diversity at their fingertips. Fisherman's Wharf, a must-see for all, includes waterfront marketplaces such as PIER 39, The Cannery and Ghirardelli Square. Golden Gate Park, Chinatown, North Beach, Union Square, Pacific Bell Park, the Embarcadero Center and, world famous cable cars and trolleys are just an example of what The City has to offer. The Golden Gate Bridge, San Francisco's signature landmark, looms as the gateway to the City by the Bay.

San Francisco Bay is renowned for excellent conditions for both boating and windsurfing.

Pebble Beach on the Monterey Peninsula near Carmel.

To the south of Stanford are Santa Clara and San Jose, the anchors to the Silicon Valley. Computer firms and software companies can be found throughout the region, which is considered the leader among the world's high technology industry. Lest you think that the valley is all business, though, spend a day at Paramount's Great America, delve into the wonders of technology at the Tech Museum of Innovation or explore the Winchester Mystery House.

One of the world's great stretches of coastline is located within a short drive from Stanford University. To the south is the Monterey Peninsula, which includes the picturesque coastal towns of Monterey, Carmel and Santa Cruz. The Monterey Bay Aquarium, Cannery Row and 17-Mile Drive along Pebble Beach are musts for visitors.

And if you bring your golf clubs, some of the most famous golf courses can be found on the Monterey Peninsula, including Pebble Beach, Spyglass Hill and Cypress Point. The Beach Boardwalk, which features a historic wooden roller coaster, is located along the coast in Santa Cruz.

Further north along the coast is Half Moon Bay, Princeton-by-the-Bay, San Francisco and Marin County, located just across the Golden Gate Bridge. A short ferryboat ride past Alcatraz Island are the coastal towns of Tiburon, Larkspur and Sausalito.

Stanford Athletics Home of Champions

“Home of Champions.” Those are the bywords for the Stanford University Athletic Department.

And for good reason. No athletic department in the country can boast of the kind of success that Stanford has accomplished since the 1980’s. NCAA team champions. NCAA individual champions. Olympic medalists. Stanford University athletes have been all over the world capturing championships.

The statistics speak for themselves: Stanford University has won 75 NCAA team championships since 1980, the most in the nation; Cardinal athletes have won 52 NCAA championships since 1990 – again the most in the nation. Stanford has brought home 31 NCAA championship trophies the past eight years, including an unprecedented six NCAA team titles in 1996-97. In 1991-92, Stanford athletes took home 29 individual NCAA titles – an NCAA record. Cardinal athletes won 21 individual championships during the 1992-93 season, the second most in history.

Even more impressive is Stanford’s string of 12 consecutive Directors’ Cup titles (1995-2006). The award honors the nation’s top overall athletic program and with 12 straight victories in the competition, it is no wonder Stanford is considered the dominant athletic program in the nation.

Stanford captured its 12th straight Directors’ Cup in 2005-06. The Cardinal won a total of three national team crowns (two NCAA) in synchronized swimming (U.S. Collegiate), women’s tennis and women’s cross country. Stanford had a total of 20 Top 10 finishes with men’s water polo, women’s basketball, men’s swimming, women’s swimming, men’s gymnastics, women’s indoor track, men’s crew, women’s sailing, men’s tennis and women’s water polo joining the national champions in the Top Five. The Cardinal also picked up six individual national titles (two NCAA) and 13 team conference championships.

Stanford has now won at least one NCAA team championship for 30 straight years. Cardinal teams have also won four or more NCAA team titles in a single year nine times, an NCAA best.

All totaled, Stanford has won 104 collegiate team titles (92 NCAA championships) and 395 NCAA individual titles. Cardinal women have won an NCAA-best 35 team championships while men’s teams have captured 57 NCAA team titles, third-best in the nation. Overall, Stanford’s 92 NCAA team championships rank second in the nation.

In the last 10 years (since 1996-97), Stanford has claimed 33 national team championships and 29 NCAA team titles – the best in the country.

The best athletic year in school history arguably came in 1996-97 when Cardinal teams set an NCAA record by winning six NCAA team championships in a single academic year: men’s and women’s cross country; men’s and women’s volleyball; and

The Stanford women’s tennis team has captured five of the past six NCAA titles.

No other athletic department in the country can boast of the kind of success that Stanford has accomplished.

Tiger Woods is one of the PGA’s most successful golfers with victories in all four Major events.

men's and women's tennis. Nine other teams finished in the Top Four nationally, including second-place finishes in women's swimming, men's swimming, men's water polo and women's synchronized swimming. Stanford also posted third-place finishes in women's basketball, baseball and fencing, as well as fourth place finishes in women's golf and women's water polo. In addition, the Stanford co-ed sailing team added a ICYRA national championship.

The 1996-97 school year also saw the Cardinal football team advance to the Sun Bowl, the women's basketball team return to the Final Four, the baseball team qualify for the College World Series and the men's basketball team advance to the Sweet Sixteen of the NCAA Tournament for the first time since it won the 1942 NCAA title.

Not only has the Cardinal won an NCAA record six NCAA team championships in a single season (1996-97), but it has also won five NCAA titles in a single year on three occasions: 1991-92, '94-95 and '97-98. Cardinal teams have won four championships in a single academic year on five occasions: 1985-86, '86-87, '92-93, '93-94 and 2001-02.

Stanford has won 186 conference or regional titles since 1991, again the best in the country. Cardinal teams won a record 18 conference or regional championships in 1998-99 – by far the best performance of any school in the nation.

The Stanford women's basketball team has been a consistent top finisher in the Pac-10, advancing well into the NCAA tournament for years.

Another memorable moment came in 1999-2000 when the Cardinal football, men's basketball and baseball teams won at least a share of their respective Pac-10 titles for the first time in school history.

Stanford has simply dominated in several sports. The Cardinal men's tennis team has won 17 NCAA titles while the women's squad has hauled in 16 national titles. Other programs to have brought in at least five national titles include men's water polo (11), women's swimming (9), men's swimming (8), men's golf (7) and women's volleyball (6).

Stanford has also enjoyed unequalled success in Olympic competition. Stanford was represented by 43 affiliates at the most recent Olympic Games that took place in 2004 in Athens, Greece. The Cardinal totaled 17 medals (three gold, seven silver, seven bronze).

At the 2000 Summer Games in Sydney, Australia, Stanford was represented by a total of 34 athletes and coaches. The Cardinal contingent won a total of 10 medals – four gold, three silver and three bronze.

At the 1996 Games in Atlanta, Stanford placed 49 coaches and athletes on Olympic teams, including three head United States Olympic coaches (Tara VanDerveer, women's basketball; Richard Stanford's women's cross country team has won two of the past three NCAA titles.

Quick, women's swimming; Skip Kenney, men's swimming). Stanford athletes accounted for 16 gold medals, one silver and one bronze in Atlanta.

At the 1992 Games in Barcelona, Cardinal athletes earned 19 medals – 10 gold, four silver and five bronze. If Stanford were a country, it would've placed 13th in the world with its 19 medals and ninth with 10 golds. Thirty-eight Stanford-affiliated athletes and coaches participated in Barcelona while 41 members of the Cardinal family took part in the 1988 Olympic Games in Seoul, Korea.

Olympic gold medalists are numerous on The Farm. Former Cardinal standout Bob Mathias won back-to-back Olympic decathlon gold medals in 1948 and '52, while swimmers Pablo Morales, Jenny Thompson, Summer Sanders, Janet Evans and Misty Hyman have become household names in the swimming world.

Morales, who helped Stanford win three straight NCAA team championships (1985-87), won three medals at the 1984 Games in Los Angeles (one gold, two silver) and two more gold medals at the 1992 Games in Barcelona. Evans won three golds in the 1988 Games in Seoul, and one gold and one silver in Barcelona, while Sanders won four medals in Barcelona; two gold, one silver and one bronze. Thompson is the most decorated athlete in Olympic history with 12 medals (eight gold, three silver, one bronze). Hyman added her name to the list of Stanford swimming greats by winning the 2000 Olympic gold medal in the 200 meter butterfly to pull off one of the biggest upsets of the Sydney Olympiad.

A list of the great student-athletes in the history of Stanford Athletics would be difficult to even come close to compiling but a few of the great names in the amazing history of Stanford Athletics include Tom Watson and Tiger Woods (golf); Tim Mayotte, John McEnroe and Roscoe Tanner (men's tennis); Keri Walsh, Ogonna Nnamani, Kim Oden and Logan Tom (women's volleyball); Kristin Folk (women's basketball/volleyball); Jack McDowell and Mike Mussina (baseball); Julie Foudy (women's soccer); Hank Luisetti, Brevin Knight and Mark Madsen (men's basketball); Jennifer Azzi, Nicole Powell and Kate Starbird (women's basketball); Tony Azevedo (men's water polo); Jim Plunkett, John Elway and Troy Walters (football); Debi Thomas (figure skating); Eric Heiden (speed skating) and the great Ernie Nevers (football); just to name a few.

It's no wonder Stanford University is often referred to as the "NCAA's Champion of Champions."

Stanford's National Titles Home of Champions

The Stanford women's tennis team has won a record 15 out of 25 possible NCAA titles since 1982.

NCAA championships are commonplace at Stanford University. Cardinal teams have won NCAA championships at an unprecedented rate, including a national-best 75 since 1980 and 52 titles since 1990. Stanford has won at least one NCAA team championship for 30 consecutive years and has won at least four national titles in a single season nine times – again an NCAA best.

Stanford has won 18 national titles in men's tennis, 16 in women's tennis, 11 in men's water polo, nine in women's swimming, eight in men's swimming and seven in men's golf, among others. Nineteen Cardinal teams have won national championships.

Stanford Athletics has won 104 national championships. In NCAA competition, Cardinal teams have won 92 team titles, including 57 men's championships and an NCAA-best 35 women's titles.

STANFORD STADIUM

New Stanford Stadium to be Unveiled in 2006

It was built in 1921 in just over four months and for the next 85 years, Stanford Stadium was not only home to Stanford Football, but it also played host to a Super Bowl, World Cup, Olympic soccer, a Presidential acceptance speech and the Olympic Track and Field Trials, to name a few. Stanford Stadium, with its 85,000 seats, was the largest privately owned college football facility in the country. Until now.

Following the Stanford-Notre Dame game on November 26, 2005, the makeover of Stanford Stadium began. When it was unveiled for the first time on September 16, 2006 in Stanford's home opener against Navy, the New Stanford Stadium took its place among the most beautiful college football facilities in the nation.

The New Stanford Stadium will have a seating capacity of approximately 50,000, a considerable difference from the original. This will allow Stanford Stadium to be more intimate and fan-friendly while creating an electrifying game experience. Removal of the track and fencing around the playing field will provide improved sightlines and bring spectators 70-100 feet closer to the field of action than they were before.

Some of the other improved amenities in the New Stanford Stadium will include more comfortable seating with increased leg room (benches converted to armchair seats on sidelines; seatbacks in end zones), improved guest access with three new tunnels (seven total) and better circulation via expanded lower bowl concourse and new upper bowl concourse, new and increased number of restrooms with universal restroom speakers, upgraded concessions with closed circuit TVs at all concession stands, an improved distributed sound system and a new matrix video board at South End Scoreboard, new and expanded press box, and improved ADA accessibility and increased seating for disabled.

The stadium's natural turf field, named the Louis W. Foster Family Field, is considered to be one of the finest playing surfaces in the country. The playing surface is TIF-2 hybrid Bermuda Grass developed specifically as a sports turf and cultivated at sod farms specially for Stanford Stadium. The engineered drainage layer is comprised of a sand matrix combined with perforated collection pipes which rapidly remove surface water and facilitate on-going field use even in the rainiest conditions.

The plan for a New Stanford Stadium with a goal to make it a more intimate sporting venue with modern amenities was approved by the university's Board of Trustees in June of 2005. The $90 million project was funded by the Department of Athletics, Physical Education and Recreation Investment Fund (DAPER), as well as from alumni and friends of Stanford University. As a result, the construction was completed without incurring any long-term debt.

Stanford Stadium's long and storied history made it one of the most prestigious stadiums in the country. Some of the historical events hosted by Stanford Stadium included Herbert Hoover's presidential acceptance speech in 1928, the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials in 1960, the USA-USSR Track Meet in 1962, Olympic soccer matches in 1984, Super Bowl XIX in 1985, Men's World Cup soccer in 1994 and Women's World Cup soccer in 1999.

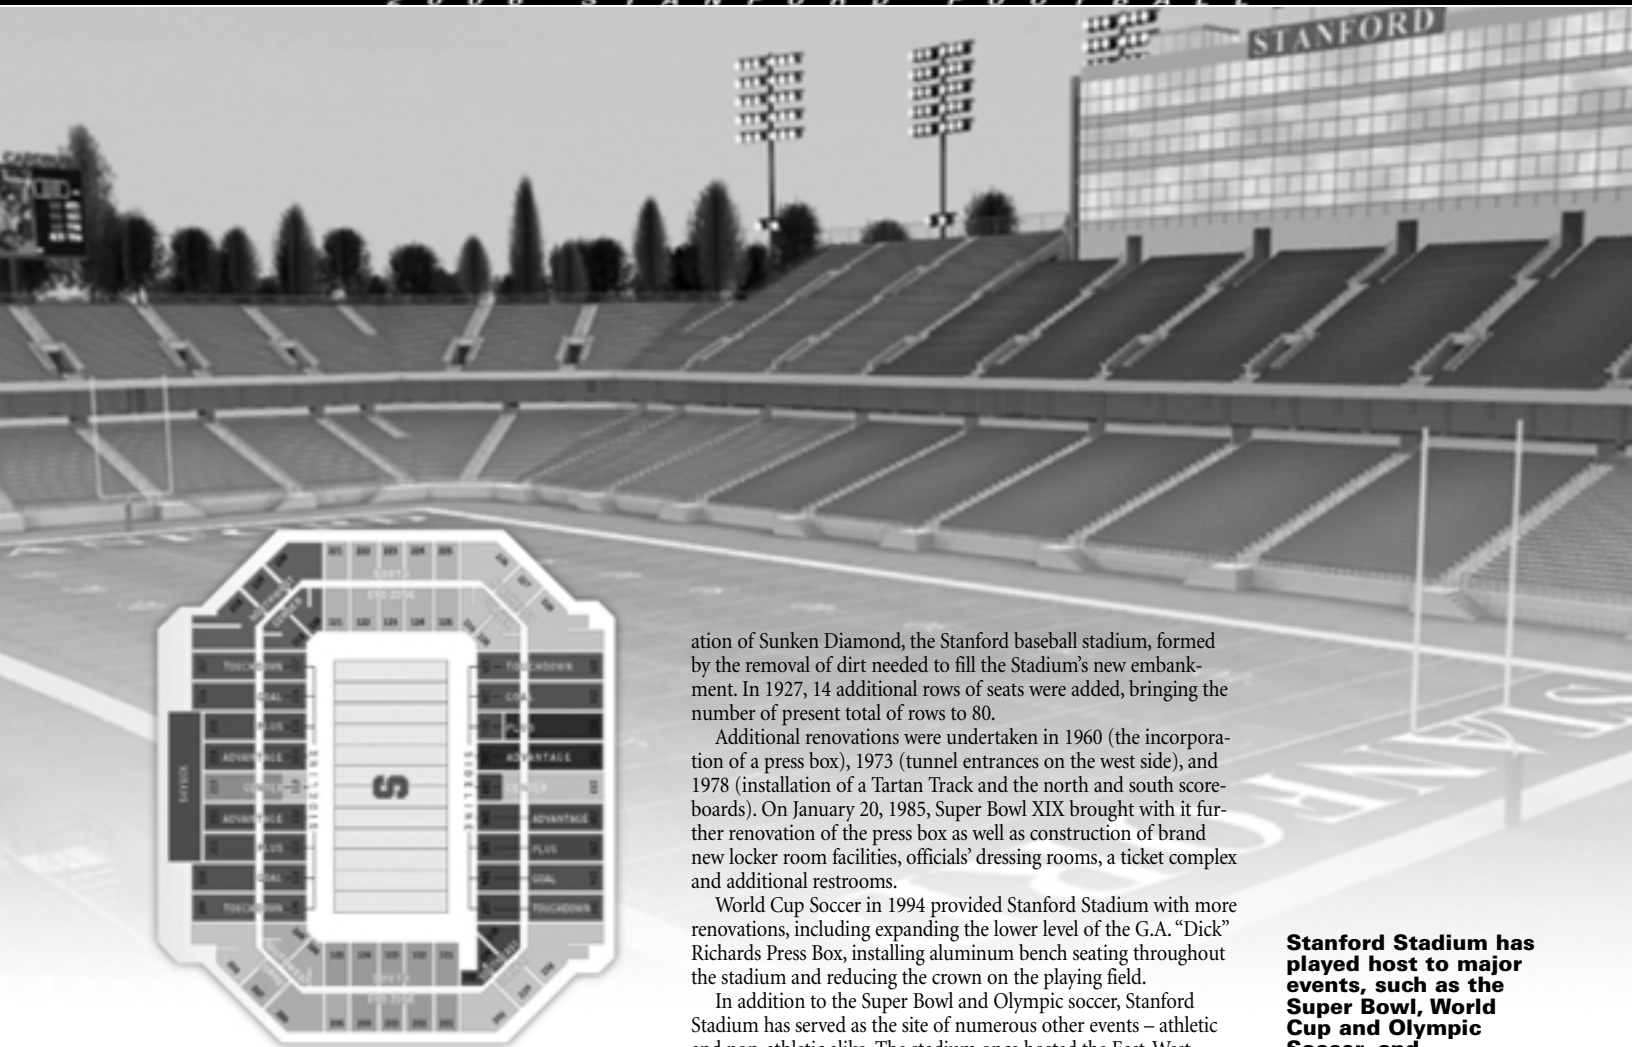

Stanford Stadium made history by hosting Super Bowl XIX on January 20, 1985, to become the first college stadium to host a Super Bowl when 84,059 fans watched Bill Walsh and his San Francisco 49ers dominate the Miami Dolphins in a 38-16 victory. MVP Joe Montana completed 24-of-35 for 331 yards and three TDs in leading his team to its second World Championship in four years.

Other highlights in the venue included nine Olympic soccer matches, including six preliminary matches, two quarterfinal matches and one semifinal match in 1984 when 465,000 fans jammed Stanford Stadium to witness the world's best soccer players.

The eyes of the world were again focused on Stanford Stadium in late June and early July of 1994 as the largest sporting event in the world came to The Farm with the arrival of World Cup Soccer in the United States for the first time ever. Almost 500,000 fans and a worldwide television audience witnessed six matches at Stanford

Stanford Stadium was the site of Super Bowl XIX on January 19, 1985, when the San Francisco 49ers defeated the Miami Dolphins, 38-16.

Stadium – four first round matches, one second round match and one quarterfinal match

In 1999, Stanford Stadium hosted a soccer doubleheader on July 4 that included a Women’s World Cup semifinal match between the United States and Brazil. The game was followed by a Major League Soccer matchup between the San Jose Clash and the D.C. United.

One memorable non-athletic event that was held in the facility was the delivery of 31st President Herbert Hoover’s acceptance speech on August 12, 1928. Hoover was the manager of Stanford’s first football team.

Initially sparked by a feud with the University of California to see which school could complete a new football facility sooner, the construction of the original Stanford Stadium was accomplished in just over four months. The original design, undertaken by engineering professors Charles Wing, Charles Marz and William Durand, called for a 66-row, U-shaped structure. Seating capacity in the original stadium was 60,000, second only to the Yale Bowl at the time. The cost of construction, estimated at $200,000, was underwritten by alumni subscriptions and the gate receipts from the 1921 Big Game against California. Alumni subscriptions of $100 carried with them the privilege of buying choice seats, at discount, to all intercollegiate events for the next 15 years. Later, this right was extended to a lifetime guarantee. Over $100,000 was raised in this fashion.

The first game held in the new stadium, appropriately enough, pitted Stanford against the University of California on November 19, 1921. Although the Golden Bears, who later went on to win the Rose Bowl that year, spoiled Stanford’s home opener by registering a 42-7 win, Stanford did manage to score the first touchdown in history on the newly christened field.

Continually undergoing renovation, the Stadium eventually grew to a capacity of 85,500. In 1925, an additional 10,200 seats were added to the facility, partially closing the horseshoe-shaped structure. An unintentional by-product of this operation was the creation of Sunken Diamond, the Stanford baseball stadium, formed by the removal of dirt needed to fill the Stadium’s new embankment. In 1927, 14 additional rows of seats were added, bringing the number of present total of rows to 80.

Additional renovations were undertaken in 1960 (the incorporation of a press box), 1973 (tunnel entrances on the west side), and 1978 (installation of a Tartan Track and the north and south scoreboards). On January 20, 1985, Super Bowl XIX brought with it further renovation of the press box as well as construction of brand new locker room facilities, officials’ dressing rooms, a ticket complex and additional restrooms.

World Cup Soccer in 1994 provided Stanford Stadium with more renovations, including expanding the lower level of the G.A. “Dick” Richards Press Box, installing aluminum bench seating throughout the stadium and reducing the crown on the playing field.

In addition to the Super Bowl and Olympic soccer, Stanford Stadium has served as the site of numerous other events – athletic and non-athletic alike. The stadium once hosted the East-West Shrine College All-Star Football Game, played in January of each year. It has also been the site of a host of national and international track and field competitions, including the United States Olympic Trials in 1960. In 1962, a two-day meet between teams from the United States and the Soviet Union drew more than 150,000 spectators to Stanford Stadium.

The largest crowd ever to witness an event at Stanford was the audience at the 1935 Big Game. The attendance that day was an over-capacity 94,000, all of whom witnessed Stanford’s 13-0 win over California. The Indians (later to become the Cardinal) went on to capture the 1935 Rose Bowl by defeating SMU.

Stanford Stadium has played host to major events, such as the Super Bowl, World Cup and Olympic Soccer, and numerous college football games.

Stanford Athletic Facilities

Stanford University is home to some of the finest athletic facilities in the nation. Student-athletes at Stanford can use the latest and most up-to-date strength and training technology while competing in some of the country's top facilities.

Stanford football players utilize four practice fields, a state-of-the-art training room and a weight training facility that covers over 10,000 square feet.

Stanford athletes enjoy access to the most modern and up-to-date equipment and technology available in the field of Strength and Conditioning. Cardinal football players train in a 10,000 square foot state-of-the-art facility located in the Arrillaga Family Sports Center. The Varsity Weight Room, renovated during the summer of 2002, is the strength and conditioning home to Stanford's 35 intercollegiate sports programs. The Varsity Weight Room also has a fully equipped nutrition and supplement station, complete with everything an athlete may need in the way of recovery and carbohydrate replacement beverages and dietary supplements. The four football practice fields include three natural turf fields and one AstroTurf field.

Many athletic facilities at Stanford are considered among the best in the country, including Sunken Diamond, home of Stanford baseball, Maples Pavilion, home to Cardinal basketball and volleyball, among others, the Avery Aquatics Complex, where NCAA champions and future Olympians train, Cobb Track & Angell Field and the Taube Family Tennis Stadium, home to 31 national championship trophies.

The Arrillaga Center for Sports and Recreation opened in February, 2006, and provides numerous facilities for intercollegiate and recreational sports.

Since Stanford University began playing football in 1891, Cardinal football players have had the opportunity to experience the best in intercollegiate football while at the same time earning one of the most prestigious undergraduate degrees in the world.

Eighteen Stanford football players have been drafted in the first round of the NFL Draft. Pro football greats Jim Plunkett, John Elway, James Lofton, John Brodie and Frankie Albert are just a few of Stanford's first round selections.

Bob Mathias, whom many consider to be the greatest athlete of all time, became a U.S. Congressman from California following his playing days at Stanford. Mathias, of course, won the 1948 and '52 Olympic gold medals in the decathlon. He played football at Stanford in 1951 and '52, and was a four-year member of the track team.

Some recent Stanford graduates who have continued their success on the playing field to great success off the field include Cory Booker '90, the newly elected Mayor of Newark, New Jersey, Russell Stewart '00, who currently attends the University of Chicago Medical School, Nicodemus Watts '96, currently attending the University of Southern California Medical School, John Sande IV '00, Santa Clara Law School and DeRonnie Pitts '00 and John Hebert '95, both currently attending the Stanford Business School.

Stanford football players have gone on to impressive careers in the law profession as well. Two-time letterwinner James Ukropina, three-year letterwinner Ray Anderson, First-Team All-American Chris Burford, four-year letterwinner Larry Reynolds and three-year letterwinners Rodney Gilmore and John Finley are just some examples.

Ukropina, who was a Stanford letterwinner in 1957 and '58, went on to a distinguished career as an attorney. He is a former member of the Board of Trustees at Stanford University. Anderson, a letterwinner from 1973-75, received his bachelor's degree in Political Science from Stanford in 1976 and a law degree from Harvard. Anderson, who was recently ranked on Sports Illustrated's list of the "Most Influential Minorities in Sports", was a successful sports agent for nearly two decades before being named Executive Vice President and Chief Administrative Officer of the Atlanta Falcons in 2002.

Burford, a First-Team All-American receiver in 1959 and a member of the College Football Hall of Fame, went on to play eight seasons in professional football with the Kansas City Chiefs.

Burford earned his Law degree while playing professional football.

Gilmore, along with practicing law in the San Francisco Bay Area, is also a television commentator for ESPN. He served as the Chair of the Stanford Athletic Board from 1997-98.

Stanford football players have made their mark in the business world as well. Phil Satre, a three-year letterwinner from 1969-71 and a member of Stanford's back-to-back Rose Bowl championship teams, is currently Chairman of the Board of Harrah's Entertainment. Bill Kellar, a four-time letterwinner (1974-77), is currently the Director of Football Sports Marketing at Nike.

Hillary Shockley, a three-year letterwinner and member of Stanford's back-to-back Rose Bowl teams in 1970 and '71, is currently the President of his own company, A/R Capital. Randy Vataha, a First-Team All-Pac-10 pick in 1970, helped lead Stanford to a conference title and Rose Bowl victory before playing seven seasons in the NFL. Vataha is currently the Chief Executive Officer of Game Plan Inc., an investment banking company for professional sports teams.

Blaine Nye was a First-Team All-Pac-8 selection who went on to play nine seasons in the NFL with the Dallas Cowboys, including three Super Bowl games. Nye received his MBA from Stanford in 1974 and earned his Ph.D. in Financial Economics from Stanford following his playing days. He is currently President of the Stanford Consulting Group. Chuck Evans, a four-year letterwinner from 1976-79, played on two bowl game championship teams during his career. He is currently a Senior Vice President for RBC Dain Rauscher.

Former Stanford All-America Gene Washington, who played 11 seasons in the NFL, is currently the Director of Football Operations for the National Football League.

Stanford football players have touched the academic field as well. Ken Shropshire is presently a Professor and Chairman of the Legal Studies department at the Wharton School of Business, while Jerry Waldvogel is a professor of Biology at Clemson University and Dale Rubin is a founding Professor of the Appalachian (Va.) School of Law, to name a few.

The Stanford football program is also well represented in the medical profession. Joe St. Geme, a 1980 Stanford graduate with a degree in Biology, is currently the Chairman of Pediatrics at the Duke University School of Medicine. Ron Inge, a four-year letterwinner, received a degree from Stanford in Human Biology in 1977 and is currently the Chief Dental Officer at Aetna Dental. Milt McColl, who played eight seasons in the NFL, was a four-year letterwinner at Stanford. He earned his M.D. at Stanford in 1988 and is currently Vice President/General Manager at Boston Scientific Corporation.

Former Cardinal player and coach Paul Wiggin, after a tremendous 11-year career in the NFL and stints as a head coach in the NFL at Stanford, is currently the Coordinator of Pro Scouting for the Minnesota Vikings and was recently inducted in the College Football Hall of Fame. Former Stanford and NFL Hall-of-Famer James Lofton, who had a successful career in the broadcasting industry, is currently an assistant coach with the San Diego Chargers.

The list is long and the accomplishments impressive. Success on and off the field continues to define the Stanford University football player.

Stanford Football in the Community

The Stanford Football program continues to be dedicated to "giving back" to the local community.

Clint Snyder, Blaise Johnson, Allen Smith, Udeme Udofia and Jason Evans spoke to an assembly of local elementary school students in April.

The Stanford football team is committed to an active community outreach program that involves coaches, players and staff with different groups in the Bay Area. In each of the last 3 years, the Stanford Football Program won the prestigious Thomas Ford Award, presented to the Stanford Athletic team that "demonstrates a special commitment to the community." During the 2005-2006 academic year, Stanford football was involved in the following community outreach events and appearances:

- Read Across America Program
- Spring Game Youth Clinic
- Palo Alto Health Expo
- Footsteps Charities Youth Clinic
- Boys and Girls Club of the Peninsula
- East Palo Alto College Fair
- KIPP Foundation School Visits
- Stanford Youth Olympics
- YES Reading Program

The Stanford Football program hosts several youth football clinics, including the Cardinal and White Spring Game.

At the Palo Alto Health Expo in March, players took time to chat with Palo Alto Mayor, Judy Kleinberg.

Two-Sport Athletes

Two-Sport Athletes Success Beyond Football

Stanford football players have not limited their success to the gridiron, with NCAA and Olympic champions rounding out an impressive list of multi-sport athletes.

Stanford University has a long and storied tradition of two-sport athletes. Throughout the years, several Cardinal football players have not only participated in another sport, but have earned All-American honors, won NCAA championships and set school and national records.

From the early days of the great Ernie Nevers, who played baseball at Stanford and went on to play professionally with the St. Louis Browns, to future NFL Hall of Famer John Elway, who played in the New York Yankees Stanford football players have been given the opportunity to shine in other sports. Some other great Stanford football players who starred in another sport include Bob Mathias, a two-time Olympic Decathlon Gold Medalist, Mark Marquess, Stanford's head baseball coach since 1977, Darrin Nelson, the Cardinal's all-time leading rusher and track standout, James Lofton an NCAA champion in the long jump, John Lynch, who was a pitcher in the Florida Marlins organization, and Chad Hutchinson, starting quarterback in the NFL and a former major league pitcher.

NFL Hall of Fame receiver James Lofton was the 1978 NCAA long jump champion for the Stanford track & field team.

Two-time Olympic gold medal decathlete Bob Mathias

John Elway was drafted by the New York Yankees prior to his Hall of Fame NFL career.

All-time rushing leader Darrin Nelson is still among Stanford's list of fastest sprinters.

John Lynch was drafted by the Florida Marlins as a pitcher before his Pro Bowl NFL career.

Two-Sport Athletes

2006 STANFORD FOOTBALL

John Paye was a starter at guard for Stanford's basketball team.

Teyo Johnson earned honorable mention All-Pac-10 Freshman honors in basketball and was drafted by the Oakland Raiders.

Chad Hutchinson played baseball for the St. Louis Cardinals and football for the Dallas Cowboys and Chicago Bears.

Stanley Wilson qualified for NAAs in the 100 meters (10.46) as well as a member of Stanford's 400 meter relay.

Pac-10 Conference The Conference of Champions

Chris Hernandez graduated as a three-time All-Pac-10 selection.

Entering the 2006-07 season, the Pacific-10 Conference continues to uphold its tradition as the "Conference of Champions."™ Pac-10 members have claimed an incredible 138 NCAA team titles over the past 16 seasons, for an average of more than eight championships per academic year.

Even more impressive is the breadth of the Pac-10's success, as those 138 team titles have come in 24 different men's and women's sports. The Pac-10 has led the nation in NCAA Championships 40 of the last 46 years and finished second five times.

Spanning nearly a century of outstanding athletics achievement, the Pac-10 has captured 351 NCAA titles (251 men's, 100 women's), far outdistancing the runner-up Big Ten Conference's 205 titles.

The Conference's reputation is further proven in the annual United States Sports Academy Directors' Cup competition, the prestigious award that honors the best overall collegiate athletics programs in the country. Stanford continued its remarkable run in the 2005-06 season, winning its 12th consecutive Directors' Cup. In the 2005-06 competition, seven of the Top-25 Division I programs were Pac-10 members: No. 1 Stanford, No. 2 UCLA, No. 6 California, No. 9 USC, No. 10 Arizona, No. 13 Arizona State and No. 17 Washington. The Pac-10 landed six programs in the Top-15, three more than the second-place SEC (3).

The Pac-10 captured nine NCAA titles in 2005-06 to lead the nation. It should be noted that the Pac-10 total does not include California's national championship in rugby or men's crew, as they are not counted as NCAA titles. The Pac-10 led the nation with the most NCAA titles in women's sports with six.

NCAA team champions from the Pac-10 in 2005-06 came from UCLA (men's volleyball and women's water polo), Stanford (women's cross country and women's tennis), Arizona (softball), California (women's rowing), USC (men's water polo), Washington (women's volleyball) and Oregon State (baseball). The Pac-10 also had runners-up in six NCAA Championship events: men's basketball (UCLA), women's soccer (UCLA), women's golf (USC), women's outdoor track and field (USC), men's swimming and diving (Arizona) and women's indoor track and field (Stanford). The Trojans also competed in the BCS National Championship Game, but football is not recognized as an NCAA title. Overall, the Conference had 15 teams finish in the top three at NCAA Championship events.

Participation in the postseason was a common occurrence for the Conference in 2005-06. Of the 22 sports sponsored by the Pac-10, 18 witnessed at least half its teams participating in NCAA or other postseason action. The men sent 56 of a possible 92 teams into the postseason (60.8 percent), while the women sent 61 of a possible 100 teams (61.0 percent).

The Pac-10 experienced continued success in football as the league sent five teams to bowl games. USC claimed its fourth consecutive Pac-10 crown, capping its 12-1 season with a berth in the BCS National Championship game. Overall, the Pac-10 went 3-2 in postseason bowl games with Arizona State, California, Oregon and UCLA also earning bowl appearances. USC tailback Reggie Bush won the Heisman Trophy, the third Trojan to win the award in four years. USC and Oregon found themselves ranked in the Top-15 in the nation at the conclusion of the season, finishing second and 12th, respectively (AP and USA Today).

The Pac-10 also showed its worth on the basketball court, as it sent four teams into the NCAA Men's Basketball Championship. UCLA advanced to the national championship game, falling just short to Florida in the finals. The Bruins captured both the Pac-10 regular season championship and the Pacific Life Pac-10 Tournament crown. On the women's side, six teams competed in the NCAA Tournament for the first time in Conference history. Stanford reached the Elite Eight for the third straight year, while UCLA picked up its first-ever State Farm Pac-10 Tournament Trophy.

The Conference continued its dominance in softball as seven teams earned trips to NCAA regional play, the most out of any conference in the nation. Arizona claimed its seventh national title with a two-game sweep of Northwestern in the championship series. It marked the 18th national championship by a Pac-10 team since 1982. With a 15-5 Conference record, UCLA picked up the 2006 Pac-10 crown, while earning the overall No. 1 seed in the NCAA Division I Softball Championship. Oregon State claimed the 2006 NCAA Division I Baseball Championship, earning the school's first national title since a 1961 cross country championship. The Beavers became the first team in College World Series history to lose twice in Omaha and win the national title. In addition, OSU was the first truly Northern-based school to win the series since Ohio State in 1966.

The Conference also swept NCAA volleyball and water polo honors. Washington captured the women's volleyball title, while UCLA garnered the men's volleyball hardware. Water polo might as well have been labeled Conference play as USC defeated Stanford to claim the national title on the men's side and UCLA took care of USC to capture the women's championship. Rowing proved to be another showcase of Pac-10 talent, as California claimed both the NCAA women's title and the men solidified their title dreams with an IRA championship.

On the men's side, Pac-10 members have won 251 NCAA team championships, far ahead of the the 190 claimed by the runner-up Big Ten. Men's NCAA crowns have come at a phenomenal rate for the Pac-10 – 15 basketball titles by five schools (more than any other conference), 49 tennis titles, 45 outdoor track and field crowns, and 25 baseball titles. Pac-10 members have won 25 of the last 37 NCAA titles in volleyball, 32 of the last 47 in water polo, and 20 total swimming and diving national championships.

Individually, the Conference has produced an impressive number of NCAA men's individual champions as well, claiming 1,127 NCAA individual crowns.

On the women's side, the story is much the same. Since the NCAA began conducting women's championships 25 years ago, Pac-10 members have claimed at least four national titles in a single season on 17 occasions. Overall, the Pac-10 has captured 100 NCAA women's crowns, easily outdistancing the Southeastern Conference, which is second with 66. Pac-10 members have dominated a number of sports, winning 18 softball titles, 17 tennis crowns, 11 of the last 16 volleyball titles, 11 of the last 17 trophies in golf and eight in swimming and diving.

Pac-10 women athletes shine nationally on an individual basis as well, having captured an unmatched 464 NCAA individual titles, an average of more than 18 champions per season.

The roots of the Pacific-10 Conference go back nearly 90 years to December 15, 1915, when the Pacific Coast Conference (PCC) was founded at a meeting at the Oregon Hotel in Portland, Ore. Original membership consisted of four schools – the University of California at Berkeley, the University of Washington, the University of Oregon, and Oregon State College (now Oregon State University). All still are charter members of the Conference.

Pacific Coast Conference play began in 1916. One year later, Washington State College (now Washington State University), was accepted into the Conference, and Stanford University joined in 1918.

In 1922, the PCC expanded to eight teams with the admission of the University of Southern California and the University of Idaho. Montana joined the Conference in 1924, and in 1928, the PCC grew to 10 members with the addition of UCLA.

The Pacific Coast Conference competed as a 10-team league until 1950, with the exception of 1943-45, when World War II curtailed intercollegiate athletic competition to a minimum. In 1950, Montana resigned from the Conference and joined the Mountain States Conference. The PCC continued as a nine-team Conference through 1958.

In 1959, the PCC was dissolved and a new Conference was formed – the Athletic Association of Western Universities. Original AAWU membership consisted of California, Stanford, Southern California, UCLA, and Washington. Washington State became a member in 1962, while Oregon and Oregon State joined in 1964. In 1968, the name Pacific-8 Conference was adopted.

Ten years later, on July 1, 1978, the University of Arizona and Arizona State University were admitted and the Pacific-10 Conference became a reality. In 1986-87, the league took on a new look, expanding to include 10 women's sports.

Currently, the Pac-10 sponsors 11 men's sports and 11 women's sports. Additionally, the Conference is a member of the Mountain Pacific Sports Federation (MPSE) in four other men's sports and two other women's sports.

Edwin N. Atherton was named the Conference's first Commissioner in 1940. He has been succeeded by Victor O. Schmidt (1944), Thomas J. Hamilton (1959), Wiles Hallock (1971), and current Commissioner Thomas C. Hansen in 1983.

The Pacific-10 Conference offices are located 25 miles east of San Francisco in Walnut Creek, Calif.

Bowl Championship Series

When not having a conference champion participating in the BCS National Championship Game, the BCS will have the following conference champions serve as host teams: Rose Bowl – Big Ten and Pac-10; FedEx Orange Bowl – ACC; Allstate Sugar Bowl – SEC; Tostitos Fiesta Bowl – Big 12.

Pac-10 Bowl Arrangements

The Pacific-10 Conference has agreements with six bowl partners. The lineup is led by the Rose Bowl, which is the destination for the Pac-10 champion, unless said champion is ranked No. 1 of No. 2 in the final Bowl Championship Series rankings. If that were the case, the Pac-10 champion would play in the BCS National Championship Game which this year will be played in Arizona following the Tostitos Fiesta Bowl. Regardless of the disposition of the Pac-10 champion, a second Pac-10 team may be selected for an at-large berth in the Bowl Championship Series in any given year and other Pac-10 bowl partner arrangements provide for that occurrence. In addition to the Rose Bowl, Pac-10 bowl partners include the Pacific Life Holiday Bowl, Vitalis Sun Bowl, Pioneer PureVision Las Vegas Bowl, Emerald Bowl and Sheraton Hawai'i Bowl.

Following is a summary of the Pac-10 bowl arrangements for the 2006-07 season:

Bowl Game	Site	Pac-10 Team	Opponent	Date	TV
Rose	Pasadena	Pac-10 #1	Big Ten	Jan. 1	ABC

Hawai'i	Honolulu	Pac-10 #6	WAC	Dec. 24	ESPN

Prior to 1972, Stanford's teams were known as the Indians, as seen on All-American baseball player Mark Marquess' uniform.

Athletics Logo, University Seal & The Stanford Tree

The official Stanford Athletics logo features a block "S" with a stylized tree (left). However, on some uniforms, such as on the football helmet, the block "S" alone is used (right).

The official Stanford Seal features El Palo Alto (the tree) and a German phrase which translates to "the winds of freedom blow".

The "Stanford Tree" is a member of the Leland Stanford Junior University Marching Band and is not an official school mascot.

Mascot and Nickname

The unique origins of Stanford's mascot and have a history that dates back to the University's founding in 1891. While the Cardinal has always been one of the school's official colors, the nickname has gone through a series of changes, student votes, controversy and confusion.

Since 1981, Stanford has been known as the Cardinal. Stanford was known as the "Indians" from 1930-72. As for the mascot, Stanford does not officially have one. The "Tree," which is a member of the Stanford Band, has been mistaken as the school's mascot, but it is not.

Below is a brief history of the nickname, the mascot and the school colors:

The Nickname

The nickname for Stanford is the Cardinal – in reference to one of the school colors (and is therefore in the singular). Stanford's history with its nickname began on March 19, 1891 when Stanford beat Cal in the first Big Game. While Stanford did not have an official nickname, the day after the Big Game local newspapers picked up the "cardinal" theme and used it in the headlines.

Stanford did not have an "official" nickname until Indians was adopted in 1930. For years prior, the Indian had been part of the Stanford athletic tradition. Perhaps it grew out of the fact that Cal's symbol was the Bear, or it may have come from the large Indian population of the area, or from Indian paraphernalia in abundance in the late 1800's. Whatever the origin, it was accepted by sportswriters and gradually gained wide recognition.

Stanford officially adopted the Indian nickname on Nov. 25, 1930 after a unanimous vote by the Executive Committee for the Associated Students. The Indian had long been considered the symbol of Stanford before the official vote, although its origins are only speculation.

The resolution that was passed read: "Whereas the Indian has long been unofficially recognized as the symbol of Stanford and its spirit, and whereas there has never been any official designation of a Stanford symbol, be it hereby resolved that the Executive Committee adopt the Indian as the symbol of Stanford."

The Indian symbol was eventually dropped in 1972 following meetings between Stanford native American students and President Richard Lyman. The 55 students, supported by the other 358 American Indians enrolled in California colleges, felt the mascot was an insult to their culture and heritage. As a result of these talks and the ensuing publicity, the Stanford Student Senate voted 18-4 to drop the Indian symbol, and Lyman agreed.

The first student referendum on the issue was held in May, 1972, and it resulted in a vote of 1,755 for and 1,298 against restoring the Indian. The second vote, on Dec. 3-4, 1975, was 885 for and 1,915 against.

There was a move to reinstate the Indian as the school mascot in 1975. The debate was put to vote along with new suggestions: Robber Barons, Sequoias, Trees, Cardinals, Railroaders, Spikes, and Huns. None of the suggestions were accepted.

In 1978, another group comprised of 225 varsity athletes from 18 teams, started a petition for the mascot to be the griffin – a mythological animal with the body and hind legs of a lion and head and wings of an eagle. The University moved two griffin statues from the Children's Hospital to a grassy area between Encina Gym and Angel Field. The campaign for the Griffins failed.

From 1972 until November 17, 1981, Stanford's official nickname was Cardinals, in reference to one of the school colors, not the bird.

Nine years after the Indian was dropped, Stanford had still not decided on a new mascot. President Donald Kennedy declared in 1981 that all Stanford athletic teams will be represented and symbolized exclusively by the color cardinal. "While various other mascots have been suggested and then allowed to wither, the color has continued to serve us well, as it has for 90 years. It is a rich and vivid metaphor for the very pulse of life."

The Mascot

There is no official mascot at Stanford University. The "Tree," which is a member of the Stanford Band, is representative of El Palo Alto, the Redwood tree which is the logo of the city of Palo Alto. Since Stanford University and Palo Alto are almost inextricably intertwined in interests and location, it is a natural outgrowth of this relationship. The tree still exists and stands by the railroad bridge beside San Francisquito Creek – it is the site where early explorers first camped when settling the area.

The Color

When Stanford first accepted students in 1891, the student body actually voted for gold as the school's official color, but another student assembly chose Cardinal as the school color. A few days after the vote, local sportswriters picked up the "Cardinal" theme after Stanford defeated Cal in the first Big Game (March 19, 1891). The headlines read, "Cardinal Triumphs O'er Blue and Gold."

Cardinal remained the school color until the 1940's, when rules committees and conferences started regulating jersey colors for home and visiting football teams. Stanford's Board of Athletic Control adopted white as the second color.

Today, Stanford's official school colors are cardinal and white.

Bob Bowsby
The Jaquish & Kenninger
Director of Athletics

Bob Bowsby, one of the most respected and admired athletic administrators in the nation during his nearly 15 years at the helm of the University of Iowa's athletic program, was named the Jaquish & Kenninger Director of Athletics at Stanford University on April 25, 2006. He took over the reigns of the Cardinal athletic department on July 10, 2006.

Bowsby gained a national reputation for his skill and integrity in running one of the country's most ambitious and successful Division I-A athletics programs. When Stanford went in search of a replacement for Ted Leland, Bowsby's name immediately went to the top of the list.

"Bob Bowsby represents the best professional and personal values when it comes to student-athletes," said Stanford University Provost John Etchemendy, chair of the search committee. "He understands that the success of an athletics program is not simply measured in wins and losses, but in the academic achievements and character of the young women and men who work so hard on the field and in the classroom."

As Stanford's sixth athletic director, Bowsby succeeds Ted Leland (1991-2005), Andy Geiger (1979-90), Joe Ruetz (1972-78), Chuck Taylor (1963-71) and Al Masters (1925-63). Bowsby directs a department that includes 35 intercollegiate varsity teams – 15 men's, 19 women's and one coed – plus the physical education department, intramurals, club sports, open recreation and the Stanford Golf Course. The department has an annual budget of approximately $75 million.

As the chief administrator for Iowa's athletic department from 1991-2006, Bowsby earned a reputation as one of the most admired, energetic and ambitious athletic administrators in the nation. Over the past four years Bowsby guided and supervised the merger of the Hawkeye's women's and men's athletics departments. The combined entity encompasses 24 varsity sports and an annual budget in excess of $60 million.

In addition to building the Iowa athletic program, Bowsby (born January 10, 1952) has emerged as a national leader on intercollegiate athletics as well. He served as chair of the NCAA Wrestling Committee and has served on NCAA committees on Financial Aid and Amateurism, the Special Committee to Review Amateurism Issues and the Special Committee to Review Financial Conditions in Athletics. Bowsby recently completed a five-year term on the NCAA Division I Basketball Tournament Committee, serving as committee chairman in 2003-04 and 2004-05.

Bowsby has also served as an Executive Committee member with both the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics and the Division I-A Athletic Directors Association and served in 2002-2003 as President of the I-A Directors group.

He was elected chair of the NCAA Olympic Sports Liaison Committee and represented the NCAA as one of two voting members on the United States Olympic Committee. Bowsby has also served as a member of the Board of Governors for the National Wrestling Hall of Fame. He recently completed service on the 15-member commission on Opportunities in Athletics by US Secretary of Education, Rod Paige.

The National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics (NACDA) named Bowsby in 2001-02 as Central Region Athletic Director of the Year and Sports Business Journal selected him from the four regional award winners as the National Athletics Director of the Year. The award highlights the efforts of the athletic directors for their commitment and positive contributions to campuses and their surrounding communities.

Bob Bowsby was named as Stanford's sixth Athletic Director on April 25, 2006.

Bob Bowsby (right) and Hall of Fame Coach Bill Walsh tour Stanford Stadium during construction. Bowsby will direct Stanford's highly successful athletic program as it marks a 12th straight Director's Cup title and the completion of a brand new football stadium.

As the head of Iowa athletics, Bowsby was involved in the hiring of new head coaches in football, men's and women's basketball, wrestling and volleyball, enabling Iowa to maintain its standing as one of the most visible and successful Division I athletic programs.

In football, Hawkeye head coach Kirk Ferentz guided Iowa to three straight bowl appearances, a share the Big Ten title in 2002 and 21 wins in 2004 and '05, placing them among the elite of college football.

Iowa's men's and women's basketball teams each posted winning seasons and advanced to post-season play in each of the past four seasons, while the wrestling program earned the 2004 Big Ten title and placed second at the '04 NCAA championships.

Under Bowsby's leadership, Iowa enjoyed unprecedented success and growth in the area of fund raising and facilities.

Some of the facilities that have been completed under Bowsby include an $87 million renovation to Kinnick Stadium, the Russell and Ann Gerdin Athletics Learning Center, a $4.6 million state of the art athletics learning center, the Kenyon Football Practice Facility, a fully lighted area that includes two full natural turf practice fields, one artificial surface field and an on-site medical training facility, and the Roy G. Karro Hall of Fame and Visitors Center, a 25,000-square foot structure

Bowsby and the UI Development staff put in place $25 million in endowments to help support Hawkeye student-athlete scholarship aid.

A native of Waterloo, Iowa, Bowsby became Iowa's 10th Athletic Director in June, 1991 after serving in the same role at the University of Northern Iowa since 1984.

Bowsby earned his bachelor's degree from Moorhead State University (Minnesota) in 1975 and his master's degree from the University of Iowa in 1978. He and his wife, Candice, have four children: Lisa, Matt, Rachel and Kyle.

Bob Bowsby guided University of Iowa athletics from 1991-2006.

Credentials/Broadcasting Arrangements

Requests for press, radio, television and photography credentials for all Stanford home games should be addressed to Aimee Dombroski, Assistant Media Relations Director, Arrillaga Family Sports Center, Department of Athletics, Stanford University, Stanford, California 94305-6150 or faxed to (650) 725-2957.

Parking

The Press Parking Area is located directly west of the Stanford Stadium Press Box on Galvez Street. A detailed map is enclosed with each parking pass. Parking is on a first-come, first-served basis, so those covering the game should plan to arrive at least one hour before game time to be assured of a parking spot.

Telephones

Arrangements for a telephone in the Stanford press box should be made directly with Stanford Telecommunications (650-725-4357). Those writing on deadline are encouraged to order a line, as a very limited number of lines are available for community use.

Practices

The football practice facility is located directly behind Maples Pavilion, adjacent to the Avery Aquatic Center and Sunken Diamond. All practices are open to fans and media unless otherwise noted. Media passes for field access are necessary and can be obtained by contacting the Stanford Media Relations Office at least 24 hours prior to the requested date. Players and coaches are available to the media for 10 minutes following each practice. Interview requests must be made through Gary Migdol or Kyle McRae of the Media Relations Office.

Interview Policy

To arrange a player or coach interview, please contact the Media Relations Office (Gary Migdol for coaches; Kyle McRae for players), and a time convenient to both parties will be arranged. Player interviews are generally conducted from 1-2 p.m. No player or coach interviews will be granted on Friday or before the game on Saturday.

Stanford on Radio

KNBR (1050 am) will serve as the flagship station for all Cardinal games in 2006. Bob Murphy, a familiar name to the Stanford community, will once again handle the color commentary. Murphy, who has been a part of the Stanford broadcast team for over 30 years, is a former Sports Information Director at Stanford and Athletic Director at San Jose State University. Murphy was Stanford's SID during the football team's back-to-back Rose Bowl years in 1971 and '72. He is also the Cardinal's play-by-play announcer for men's basketball radio broadcasts. Ted Robinson returned to The Farm in 1997 to handle the play-by-play duties. Robinson was Stanford's play-by-play voice from 1985-87. In addition to his duties at Stanford, Robinson's resume includes: the NCAA men's basketball tournament with CBS, the 1996 Nagano Winter Olympics on CBS, the 2000 Sydney Olympics and the 2004 Athens Olympics on NBC, the U.S. Open tennis tournament on USA Network, the French Open and Wimbledon on NBC, Notre Dame football on SportsChannel America and the Big East Conference Game of the Week, to name a few. Robinson was also a play-by-play announcer for the Minnesota Twins, San Francisco Giants and New York Mets.
