Stanford Stadium

Super Bowl XIX – San Francisco vs. Miami

The New Home of Stanford Football

A new Stanford Stadium was unveiled in 2006, making the Home of Stanford Football one of the premier college football facilities in the nation. Originally built in 1921, the $100 million project on the new Stadium began on November 26, 2005, moments after Stanford's final game, and was completed for the Cardinal's 2006 home opener versus Navy on September 16. The stadium has a seating capacity of 50,000 and includes state-of-art amenities both on the playing field and throughout the stadium.

Set in a parklike setting among groves of eucalyptus and oak trees, the Stadium is a perfect setting for Football Saturdays, with fans tailgating and enjoying the pregame festivities prior to kickoff.

Stanford Stadium has played host to the Super Bowl, Men's and Women's World Cup Soccer matches, Olympic soccer competition, a Presidential nomination and countless college football games.

Stanford Athletic Facilities

Football Facilities

Stanford's Athletics facilities are perhaps the finest in collegiate athletics, and Stanford's football program is no exception.

The Stanford football program is housed in the spacious Arrillaga Family Sports Center, which includes administrative offices, meeting rooms, training facilities and even a basketball court. The Harvey Bernhard Football Locker Room is located on the ground floor, and an extensive weight training facility is located downstairs. The Arrillaga Family Sports Center also includes a restaurant and the Stanford Athletics Hall of Fame Room, with its impressive display of Stanford's 12 Directors' Cups and NCAA trophies.

The football practice fields are located directly across from the Arrillaga Family Sports Center, adjacent to the world-class Avery Aquatic Center.

Player Development Program

Player Development Program

The goal of the Cardinal Football strength and conditioning program is to develop student-athletes who desire to persistently work towards achieving their goals and dreams, and who believe by dedicating themselves to their preparation they will be confident and expect to be successful. This is accomplished by implementing a comprehensive program that teaches players to pay attention to the details of their preparation in every aspect of their training; such as technique, effort, attitude, mental discipline, nutrition, teamwork, leadership and accountability. This is accomplished through specific, progressive, variable and precise training that is individually designed to reduce the risk and severity of injury while also improving functional athleticism as measured by evaluations of performance factors including speed, power, strength, acceleration, deceleration, balance, coordination, mobility and body composition.

Academic Support

Academics: Second to None

Football players complement their collegiate playing career with a prestigious Stanford education. Stanford University is consistently ranked as one of the best overall colleges in the nation. According to a 2007 U.S. World and News Report, Stanford ranked:

- No. 4 University in the country
- No. 4 School of Education
- No. 3 Graduate School of Business
- No. 2 Engineering program
- No. 2 Law School

Black Enterprise* ranked Stanford as the No. 7 University for African-American students in 2006.

Everyone at Stanford is committed to the full experience of a student-athlete. Each player has access to the Athletic Academic Resource Center (AARC). In the AARC, finding the balance between academics and athletics is key. Counselors and tutors work with student-athletes to make their academic lives as smooth as possible.

Stanford players earn meaningful degrees most often in four years. Athletes are also eligible to apply for a fifth year of study in order to pursue a Master's degree in many departments.

Life as a Cardinal

The Stanford Student

Student-athletes at Stanford have accepted the challenge of pursuing excellence both in the classroom and on the playing field. It is often said that Stanford offers the best of both worlds – top flight academics and unparalleled athletics.

Stanford's 6,705 undergraduates and 8,176 graduate students are distinguished by their initiative, love of learning and commitment to the larger world. Independent thinkers and relentlessly curious, students at Stanford bring passion and imagination to everything they do.

Stanford students work hard, and they play with equal energy and enthusiasm. From public service to performing arts, from intramural sports to student government, undergraduates take part in dozens of activities beyond the classroom.

Stanford Athletics: Home of Champions

The Best College Athletic Program in the Nation

Stanford Athletics is one of the most respected and admired collegiate athletic programs in the nation. During each of the past 12 years, Stanford has won the prestigious Directors' Cup awarded to the most outstanding Collegiate Athletic program in the nation.

NCAA CHAMPIONSHIPS SUCCESS

53 NCAA Championships since 1990 (most in the nation!)
79 NCAA Championships since 1980 (most in the nation!)
Stanford captured 16 NCAA titles during the past six years with 20 runner-up finishes during that time.

THE PAC-10 CONFERENCE

Stanford teams excel in the Pac-10, one of the nation's deepest conferences. With 57 Pac-10 Conference titles since 2000, Cardinal teams have dominated league play.

INTERNATIONAL COMPETITION

Many Stanford athletes continue their success in international competition, with numerous Olympic and World champions. Every four years, many current and former Stanford athletes and coaches participate in the Olympics in a variety of sports. Stanford was represented by 43 affiliates at the most recent Olympic Games that took place in 2004 in Athens, Greece. The Cardinal totaled 17 medals – three gold, seven silver and seven bronze.

Stanford University

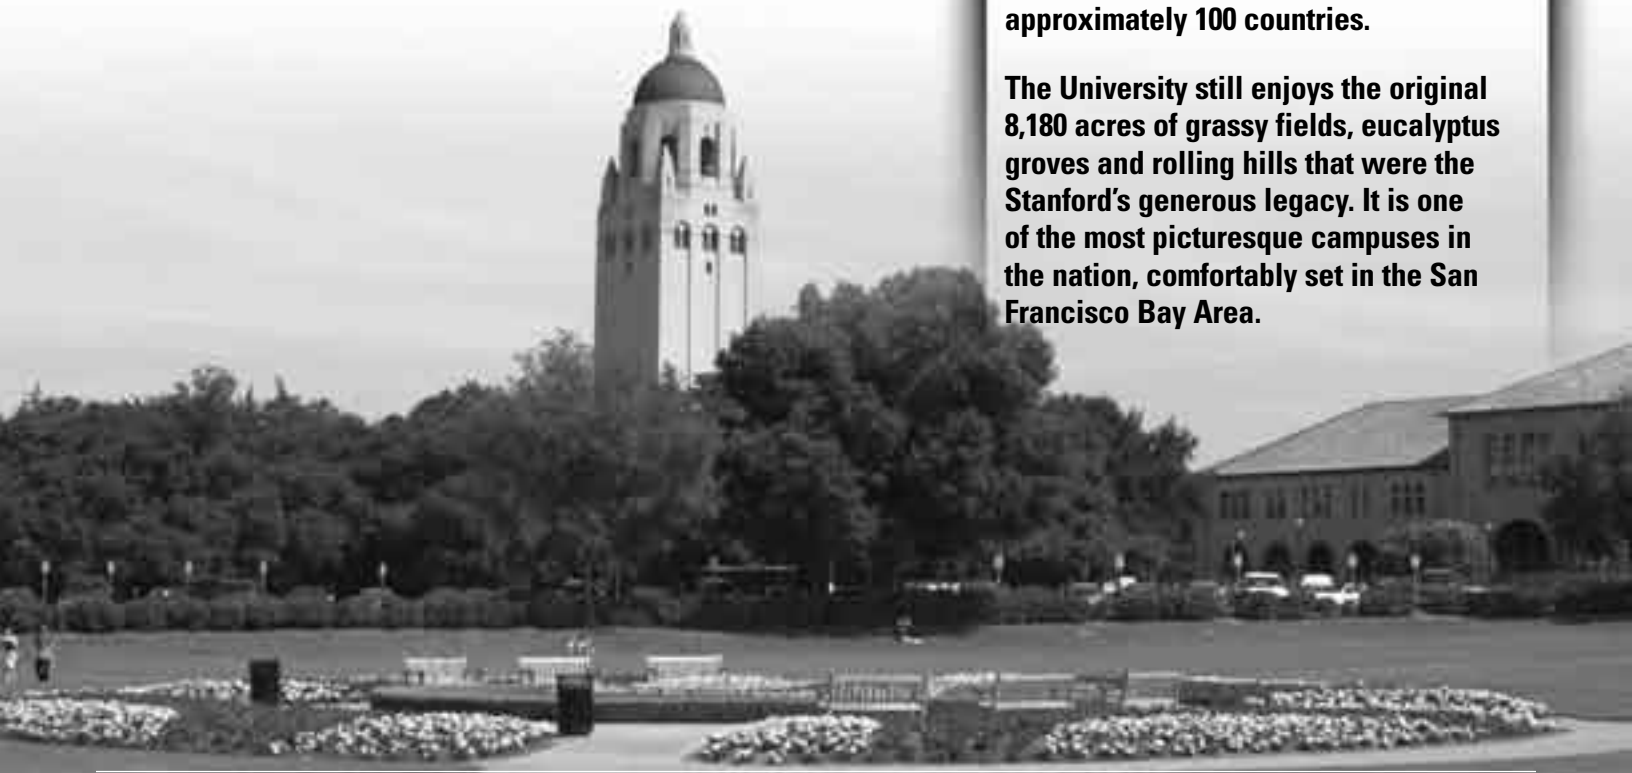

The Nation's Premier University

Stanford University is recognized as one of the world's great universities.

Stanford's faculty is one of the most distinguished in the nation, including 16 Nobel Laureates and four Pulitzer Prize winners. There are over eight million volumes in Stanford's nearly two dozen libraries.

Stanford students come from all over the world, including all 50 states and approximately 100 countries.

The University still enjoys the original 8,180 acres of grassy fields, eucalyptus groves and rolling hills that were the Stanford's generous legacy. It is one of the most picturesque campuses in the nation, comfortably set in the San Francisco Bay Area.

The San Francisco Bay Area

The Place to Go

From bustling cosmopolitan cities to quiet coastal retreats, the San Francisco Bay Area is incomparable.

First-class attractions, world-class athletics, cultural diversity, remarkable skylines and breathtaking views make this region one of the world's most popular destinations.

And at the hub of this great region is Stanford University, located less than an hour's drive of San Francisco to the north, just minutes from Silicon Valley to the south and within easy reach of the coastal cities which line the Pacific Ocean to the west.

Jim Harbaugh

Bradford M. Freeman
Director of Football
Stanford University

When Stanford Athletic Director Bob Bowlsby went in search of a new football coach following the 2006 season, it didn't take long for Jim Harbaugh's name to move to the top of the list.

And on December 19, 2006, Bowlsby named Harbaugh, former NFL player and coach of the two-time NCAA Division I-AA national champions, as the Bradford M. Freeman Director of Football at Stanford University.

"I was very happy we were able to recruit Jim Harbaugh to come to Stanford University," said Bowlsby, The Jaquish & Kenninger Director of Athletics at Stanford. "I think he is an extraordinary fit at our University. He certainly values the convergence of world class athletics and world class academics, and I think he will do an extraordinary job of representing our University as the head football coach in the years ahead."

Harbaugh has spent the last three seasons (2004-06) as the head coach at the University of San Diego, leading the Toreros to Division I-AA Mid-Major national titles each of the past two campaigns. He posted an impressive three-year overall record of 29-6 (.829) at San Diego, including 11-1 campaigns each of the past two years that also included a school record 18-game win streak over the period and two Pioneer Football League championships.

"It is a pleasure, privilege, honor and blessing to be Stanford University's head football coach", said Harbaugh. "Now, I dedicate my life's work to building the foundation at Stanford University, the foundation that will lead to great success down the road as well as continue the tradition and restore the legacy that Stanford rightfully has in college football."

Both as a player, in high school, college and in the NFL, and as a coach, Harbaugh has enjoyed success every step of the way.

Harbaugh starred at Palo Alto High School as one of the top prep quarterbacks in the nation, then enjoyed a storied career at the University of Michigan, leading the Wolverines to three bowl games while being named Big Ten Player of the Year. As a professional, Harbaugh finished his career among the Top 50 all-time in several passing categories and was named AFC Offensive Player of the Year. In his brief coaching career, he has been a part of one Super Bowl team and guided his USD teams to two national championships.

Harbaugh played for five teams over 15 seasons (1987-2001) as a quarterback in the National Football League after entering the NFL as a first round draft pick of the Chicago Bears in 1987. After seven seasons in Chicago (1987-93), Harbaugh played for the Indianapolis Colts for four years (1994-97), one year with the Baltimore Ravens (1998), two seasons with the San Diego Chargers (1999-2000) and his final season with the Carolina Panthers (2001).

While in Chicago, Harbaugh passed for over 2,000 yards in four consecutive seasons and was the starting quarterback for some of the Bears' best teams. He led Chicago to back-to-back 11-5 seasons in 1990 and '91. He had his most statistically successful NFL season in 1991 when he passed for a career-best 3121 yards and took Chicago to an NFC Wild Card game. He also led the Bears to an NFC Division playoff contest after winning an NFC Wild Card game in 1990.

Harbaugh made a significant contribution to the Indianapolis Colts during his four seasons. In 1995, Harbaugh led Indianapolis to the AFC Championship game while earning AFC Offensive Player of the Year and NFL Co-Comeback Player of the Year honors during a Pro Bowl campaign. He was also the runner-up for the NFL's Most Valuable Player honor in 1995 and the league's top-rated passer. He threw for 2630 yards in 1996 and guided the Colts to the playoffs for the second straight season. In January of 2005, Harbaugh was named to the Colts' Ring of Honor as one of the top players in franchise history.

The Jim Harbaugh File

Full Name: James Joseph "Jim" Harbaugh

Birthdate: December 23, 1963

Place of Birth: Toledo, OH

Hometown: Palo Alto, CA

High School: Palo Alto High School, 1982

College: Michigan, 1986 (B.A., Communications)

NFL Draft: 1987/Chicago Bears/1st Round (26th overall pick)

Children: Jay (born June 14, 1989); James, Jr. (born September 4, 1996); Grace (born June 27, 2000)

Playing Experience:
1982-86, University of Michigan
1987-93, Chicago Bears
1994-97, Indianapolis Colts
1998, Baltimore Ravens
1999-2000, San Diego Chargers
2001, Carolina Panthers

Harbaugh played his final five seasons for three different teams. In 1999, he passed for 2761 yards, the second highest single season total of his career, while starting for the San Diego Chargers.

Throughout his career, he passed for 26288 yards and 129 touchdowns and he ranks among the NFL's all-time Top 50 in career completions (#35, 2305), pass attempts (#39, 3918) and passing yards (#48, 26288).

Following his retirement from pro football, Harbaugh went into the coaching ranks and spent two seasons (2002-03) as the quarterbacks coach for the Oakland Raiders. In his first season, the Raiders finished 11-5 during the regular season and won the AFC Western Division. They went on to beat the New York Jets and Tennessee Titans to advance to Super Bowl XXXVII in San Diego, where they lost to Tampa Bay.

Harbaugh began his coaching career while still playing in the NFL as an NCAA-certified unpaid assistant coach under his father, Jack, at Western Kentucky University for eight seasons from 1994-2001. Serving as an offensive consultant, Jim scouted and recruited high school student-athletes throughout several states including Florida, Indiana and Illinois. He was involved in recruiting 17 players on WKU's 2002 Division I-AA National Championship team.

He played collegiate football at the University of Michigan and led the Wolverines to three bowl games as a starting quarterback from 1984-86. As a senior in 1986, he guided Michigan to an appearance in the Rose Bowl while earning All-American and Big Ten Player of the Year honors, and finishing third in the Heisman Trophy balloting. His 1985 Wolverine team added a Fiesta Bowl victory and ended the season ranked second in the national polls. He quarterbacked Michigan to a 21-3-1 overall record while starting all 25 contests in his final two collegiate campaigns.

Harbaugh has local ties to Stanford with his father spending two seasons (1980-81) as the school's defensive coordinator and Jim playing two years of prep football at nearby Palo Alto High School before graduating in 1982.

Harbaugh is also co-owner of Panther Racing in the Indy Racing League. His team won the 2001 and 2002 IRL championships. In addition, he has been very active in community service ventures including the Harbaugh Hill Foundation, the James Whitcomb Riley Hospital for Children (Indiana University), Western Kentucky University, the Jim Harbaugh Foundation, the Uhlich's Children's Home and the Children's Miracle Network.

Harbaugh's dad, Jack, was a football coach for 41 years, including 14 seasons as the head coach at Western Kentucky. His brother, John, is currently the special teams coordinator for the Philadelphia Eagles and in his ninth year with the organization; and his brother-in-law, Tom Crean, is in his eighth campaign as the men's basketball head coach at Marquette University.

Harbaugh has three children: sons Jay (born June 14, 1989) and James, Jr. (born September 4, 1996), and daughter Grace (born June 27, 2000).

Lance Anderson

Defensive Tackles/Recruiting Coordinator

One of three members of the current Cardinal staff who coached with Jim Harbaugh at the University of San Diego, Lance Anderson became Stanford's defensive tackles coach and recruiting coordinator on January 10, 2007.

While at USD the past two seasons (2005-06), Anderson coached the defensive line and was the Toreros' recruiting coordinator and a major contributor to USD finishing 11-1 and winning back-to-back NCAA Division I-AA Mid-Major national championships.

Prior to joining Harbaugh in San Diego, Anderson had coached at Utah State, Saint Mary's, Bucknell and Idaho State.

Anderson coached outside linebackers in 2004 at Utah State and assisted with all special teams. The Aggies were first in the nation in punt returns, 21st in kickoff returns and 28th in net punting.

Anderson spent the 2003 season in the Bay Area as the co-defensive coordinator and defensive line coach at Saint Mary's College in Moraga, Calif. Under his guidance, the Gaels had four defensive players chosen to the I-AA Independent All-Star team while one of those players was selected to play in the East-West Shrine Game. Safety Weston Borba was a First Team I-AA selection, linebackers Ray Mike and Heath Villarreal were Second Team picks while linebacker Anthony Woodards earned honorable mention recognition.

His longest coaching stint was at Bucknell, where he coached for four years (1999-2002). Anderson coached the defensive line and was the recruiting coordinator in 2001 and '02 after coaching tight ends and assisting on the offensive line in 1999 and 2000. One of his players was a two-time First-Team I-AA All-America defensive lineman while five of Anderson's pupils received all-league recognition. Bucknell's defense led the Patriot League in total defense in 2001 and '02 and finished fifth nationally in total defense in '01.

In 1999, Anderson coached running backs for one season for the Mobile Admirals of the Regional Football League. His team won the league championship while one of his players led the league in rushing and was named league MVP, and another was an all-league tight end.

A native of Rupert, Idaho, Anderson began his coaching career at his alma mater, Idaho State, in 1997. He spent two seasons with the Bengals (1997-98), the first as running backs coach and the second as assistant offensive line and tight ends coach.

Anderson played football, basketball and track at Minico High School in Idaho before walking on to the football team at Brigham Young in 1989. After serving an LDS mission in Phoenix, Ariz., Anderson walked on at Idaho State where he played linebacker in 1993 and '94. He earned a Bachelor's degree in biology from Idaho State in 1996 and is currently working on a Master's in education at Bucknell.

Anderson and his wife, Sherri, have three children: Aubrey, Jaren and Braden.

Andy Buh
Linebackers

Andy Buh was named to Jim Harbaugh's staff at Stanford on January 10, 2007, as the Cardinal's linebackers coach. Buh, pronounced BOO, most recently coached at San Diego State and Fresno State. He has also coached at California and Nevada during his coaching career.

A 1996 graduate of the University of Nevada, Buh was a graduate assistant coach last year at Fresno State. He assisted with the linebackers and special teams for the Bulldogs' staff while also running the scout team.

For four seasons prior to moving to Fresno, Buh was the linebackers coach at San Diego State from 2002-05. He helped the Aztecs put together a defensive unit in 2003 that ranked eighth in total defense nationally. One of Buh's pupils, Kirk Morrison, was twice named the Mountain West Conference Defensive Player of the Year. Under his tutelage in 2005, two SDSU linebackers were on the national watch lists for the Nagurski and Butkus Awards and both have gone on to NFL careers.

Buh twice coached players at San Diego State that led the Mountain West Conference in tackles: Matt McCoy in 2003 and Freddie Keiaho in 2005. Four of Buh's former players are currently playing in the NFL, including McCoy, who was a second round draft pick, Morrison and Keiaho, both third round selections, and Heath Farwell, who signed as a free agent.

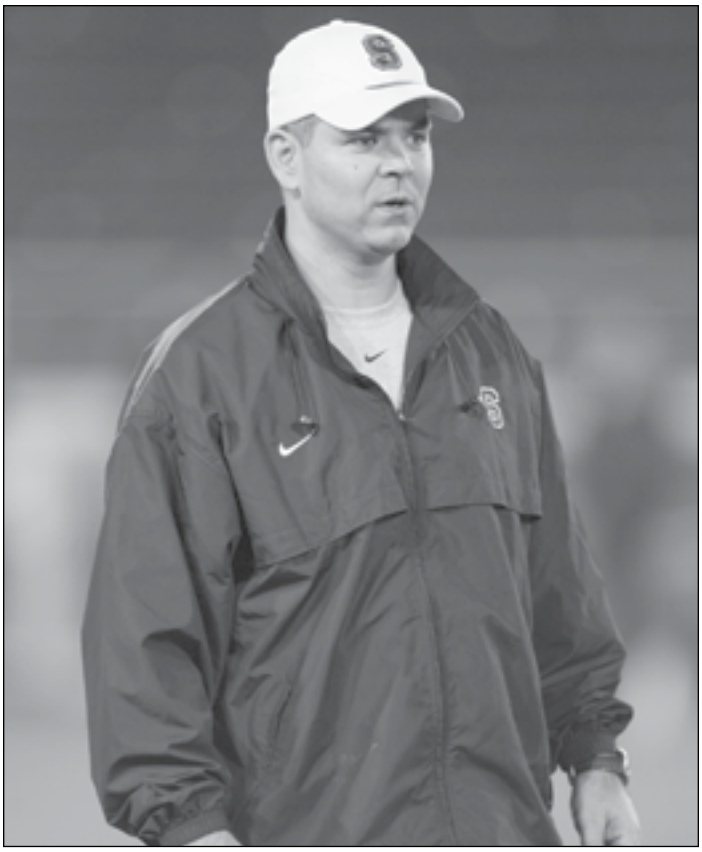

Buh spent two seasons (2000-01) in Berkeley as a defensive administrative assistant for the Bears where he worked with the defensive coordinator and linebackers.

After concluding his playing days at the University of Nevada in 1994, Buh returned to his alma mater in 1997 as a graduate assistant coach for the next two years. During this time, Buh coached the secondary and assisted with all special teams. He left Reno following the 1998 season only to return a few months later.

Buh was at Saint Mary's College in Moraga during the spring of 1999 as the Gaels' secondary coach, but he returned to Nevada prior to the 1999 season to coach the Wolfpack secondary and assist with special teams. Buh's first coaching assignment was his high school alma mater, Orange Glen, in 1996.

Buh was a two-year varsity letterwinner at Nevada, where he played linebacker under head coach Chris Ault. Buh played at Palomar College from 1991-92 before transferring to Nevada. During his community college stint, Buh helped the Comets to a 20-2 overall record and a national championship in 1991. He was also named an All-American in his final season.

Born June 20, 1973, Buh earned his Bachelor's degree in physical education from Nevada in 1996. A native of Escondido, Calif., Buh graduated from Orange Glen High School. He is married to the former Kelly Morris.

Chris Dalman
Offensive Line

Chris Dalman, a four-year letterwinner at Stanford and seven-year NFL veteran with the San Francisco 49ers, will be in his first season as the offensive line coach at Stanford in 2007. He will be responsible for developing a young offensive line that returns just two full-time starters and one part-time starter from last season's club.

Dalman has spent the last two seasons (2005-06) as the assistant offensive line coach for an Atlanta Falcons' team that was on the verge of making the playoffs in both seasons. The Falcons' offensive line has been responsible for creating running room for Warrick Dunn, who combined to rush for 2566 over the last two seasons with a pair of 1000-yard rushing seasons during both campaigns Dalman was with the club.

Dalman was an English teacher at Palma High School in Salinas, Calif., and coached football from 2001-04 at the school before joining the Falcons.

Dalman was a four-year starter for Stanford and a member of two bowl teams during his collegiate playing days. He was a junior on Stanford's 1991 Aloha Bowl squad coached by Denny Green that finished the season with an 8-4 mark and was the third-highest scoring team in school history. As a fifth-year senior on the Cardinal's 1992 team coached by Bill Walsh, he helped lead the squad to a 10-3 record and a victory over Penn State in the Blockbuster Bowl. Dalman started 33 games for the Cardinal and was named Second Team All-Pac-10 in 1992. He played in both the East-West Shrine Game and the Hula Bowl in January of 1993 following his collegiate career.

A sixth round draft choice by San Francisco in 1993, Dalman spent his entire NFL playing career from 1993-99 with the 49ers before suffering a career-ending injury during the 2000 training camp. He played in 107 games and started 64 at center and guard. Dalman captured one Super Bowl ring following the 1994 season in Super Bowl XXIX when San Francisco defeated the San Diego Chargers and played in three NFC championship games. San Francisco had winning seasons in each of his first six campaigns with the club and had a 74-38 overall regular season record during the seven years in which he played.

Dalman received his Bachelor's degree in Political Science from Stanford in 1992. He grew up in Salinas and attended Palma High School, where he graduated from in 1988.

Dalman and wife, Yanne, have two children, Kate and Drew.

Tim Drevno
Tight Ends

Tim Drevno is in his first season as the tight ends coach at Stanford in 2007 and his 15th as a collegiate coach. He will inherit a tight end group that was used sparingly in the passing game last year with Jim Dray the only returnee to have caught a ball in 2006.

Drevno came to Stanford along with first-year head football coach Jim Harbaugh from the University of San Diego, where he spent the last four seasons (2003-06) as the offensive coordinator and offensive line coach. The Toreros won NCAA Division I-AA Mid-Major national titles (Sports Network Cup) and Pioneer League championships in each of his last two campaigns.

The four Torero teams Tim coached offensive football for enjoyed a tremendous amount of success, ranking as the nation's top offense twice as well as third once and ninth on the other occasion.

The 2006 squad that finished 11-1 overall led all NCAA Division I-AA teams in passing offense (293.3 ypg), total offense (494.25 ypg) and scoring offense (42.83 ppg). Quarterback Josh Johnson was one of four offensive All-Americans on the team and led all NCAA Division I-AA quarterbacks in passing efficiency (169.0 quarterback rating), touchdown passes (34, co-leader), points responsible for (24.33 ppg) and total offense (336.7 ypg), throwing for 3320 yards to also lead the country and running for another 721. He added 11 rushing touchdowns and even caught one TD pass.

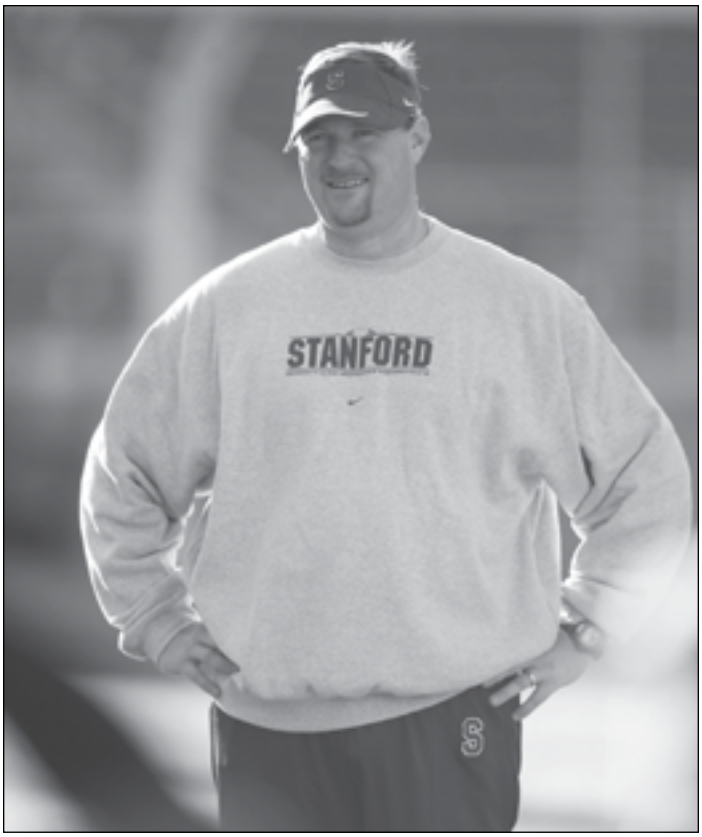

San Diego set numerous offense school records in 2005, including a 42.6 points per game average and 485.2 yards of total offense per game that were both eclipsed the following season.

In 2004, the Torero offense averaged 432.4 yards of total offense per game to rank ninth in the nation. The Toreros were also 11th in scoring offense (36.1 ppg) and 12th in passing offense (275.4 ypg).

He directed USD's West Coast offense to 483.3 yards per game to lead the nation and a Pioneer Football League best 39.9 points per game in 2003 when the squad finished 8-2 and was co-champs of the Pioneer Football League's North Division.

Drevno was the offensive line coach at Idaho for three seasons (2000-02) prior to joining the USD staff. The Vandal offense ranked sixth in the nation in 2001 and eighth in 2000. He coached a pair of current NFL players while at Idaho in Jake Scott and Rick Demulling. Scott, a fifth round pick of Indianapolis in 2004, has started all 16 regular season games with the Colts each of the past two seasons (2005-06) and was in the lineup as a starter in the squad's Super Bowl XLI victory over the Chicago Bears on February 4, 2007. DeMulling was also drafted by Indianapolis in the seventh round of the 2001 NFL Draft and played four seasons with the Colts (2001-04) before spending the last two campaigns (2005-06) with the Detroit Lions.

Prior to his tenure at Idaho, Drevno's previous coaching stops included San Jose State as the offensive line coach (1999-2000), UNLV (1998) as the running backs coach and Montana State (1993-98), where he coaching the tight ends for three seasons (1993-95) before going from 1996 through the spring of 1998 as the running backs coach. He started his coaching career with two seasons at Cal State Fullerton as a graduate assistant (1991-92).

D.J. Durkin

Defensive Ends/Special Teams

D.J. Durkin, who coached at Bowling Green the past two seasons, was named to Jim Harbaugh's staff on February 1, 2007. Durkin will coach the defensive ends and Stanford's special teams.

A native of Youngstown, Ohio, Durkin coached defensive ends for the Falcons in 2005, then moved over to coach the linebackers and become BGSU's special teams coordinator in 2006.

Durkin, a 2001 graduate of Bowling Green, began his coaching career with the Falcons as a graduate assistant in 2001 and '02. He then spent two seasons at Notre Dame (2003, '04) as a graduate assistant before returning to his alma mater in 2005.

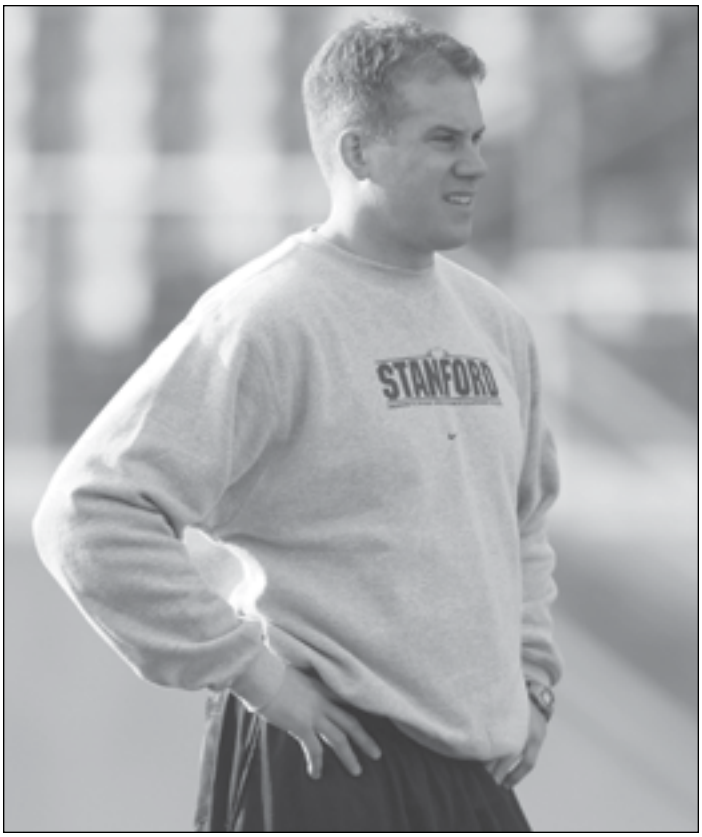

While at Notre Dame, Durkin assisted the staff in all aspects on defense with particular emphasis on working with the defensive ends, where he coached the school's all-time sack leader Justin Tuck in 2004. Durkin was also part of the Irish staff that led Notre Dame to the 2004 Insight.com Bowl.

Following his playing career, Durkin was a graduate assistant at Bowling Green during the 2001 and '02 seasons coaching the defensive ends. In 2002, the Falcons were 9-3 and ranked in the Top 20 of both major polls. In 2001, the Bowling Green defense was first in the Mid-American Conference in total defense, as well as four other major defensive categories.

A four-year starter at defensive end and outside linebacker for the Falcons as a player from 1997-2000, he was elected a two-year captain by his teammates. He started 33 games in his career and recorded 131 tackles, including 28 for loss. He led the team in sacks in 1998 and finished second on the squad in that category in 2000. He also received a number of awards during his career including the Ken Schoeni Award for character and toughness, the Carlos Jackson Award for personifying the values of a true student-athlete and the Leadership Award for displaying great leadership.

Durkin played three seasons at Boardman High School where he was an All-Conference and All-Northeast Ohio selection. He earned a Bachelor's degree in business marketing from Bowling Green in 2001 and a Master's degree in educational administration and supervision in May of 2004.

Durkin is married to the former Sarah Brumback.

Scott Shafer

Defensive Coordinator/ Assistant Head Coach

One of the top, young defensive coaches in college football, Scott Shafer joined the Cardinal staff on February 13, 2007 as assistant head coach and defensive coordinator.

Shafer spent the past two years as the defensive coordinator at Western Michigan, where he led a defensive unit that ranked among the best in the nation. Shafer, a 1990 graduate of Baldwin-Wallace, was the defensive coordinator while also coaching defensive backs at Western Michigan in 2005 and '06.

During his career, he has also coached at Indiana, Rhode Island, Northern Illinois and Illinois.

For the past two years, he helped the Broncos register the biggest turnaround in MAC history. Western Michigan was 1-10 the year before he arrived, then went 7-4 in 2005 and 8-5 in 2006. Shafer's defensive unit was a large part of WMU's success.

In 2006, Shafer spearheaded a defensive unit that ranked first in the nation in interceptions (24) and sacks (46), sixth in run defense, seventh in turnover margin and 11th in total defense. His defense included LB Ameer Ismail, the MAC Defensive Player of the Year and a Second Team All-American, and All-MAC defensive back London Fryar.

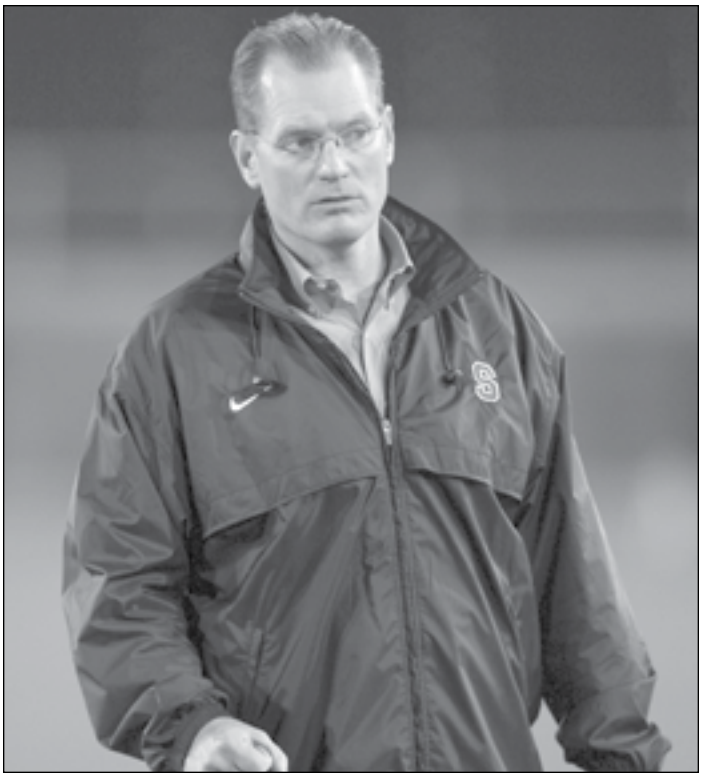

In his first season, Shafer's defense was a major reason why the Broncos were able to turn a 1-10 team into a 7-4 club. His defense, led by All-MAC defensive back Louis Delmas, recorded 13 forced fumbles and 15 interceptions.

Shafer was the secondary coach at the University of Illinois in 2004 under head coach Ron Turner prior to moving to Western Michigan. While in Champaign, he coached cornerback Kelvin Hayden, who led the Big Ten in interceptions and was drafted in the second round.

Shafer coached at Northern Illinois University for eight seasons (1996-2003), the last four as defensive coordinator. He was also the secondary coach during his entire tenure in DeKalb, Ill. As defensive coordinator, Shafer's unit was a driving force in the Huskies going 30-16 and winning two MAC West Division championships (2001, '02) from 2000-03.

Throughout his career at NIU, Shafer's players earned 13 All-MAC selections. During the 2003 season, Northern Illinois was ranked as high as No. 12 in the AP poll, recorded its first 10-win season in 20 years, and had three victories over BCS teams while holding them to an average of 15 points per game.

NIU also led the nation in interceptions with 23 in 2003 and had five defensive players named to the All-MAC team. In 2002, Shafer's defense led the conference in interceptions with 21, takeaways with 28, sacks (46), scoring defense and run defense.

David Shaw
Offensive Coordinator/Wide Receivers

David Shaw returns to Stanford as the offensive coordinator/wide receivers coach in 2007. He will be in charge of a veteran offense that has its top 10 receivers returning from last year's club, including fifth-year seniors Mark Bradford and Evan Moore as well as 2006 Pac-10 All-Freshman player Richard Sherman. The Cardinal offense will also return quarterback T.C. Ostrander, who started the team's final five games last season.

Shaw came to Stanford along with first-year head coach Jim Harbaugh from the University of San Diego, where he spent the 2006 season coaching the nation's top-ranked Division I-AA offense as the passing game coordinator and wide receivers coach as the Toreros won the NCAA Division I-AA Mid-Major national title and Pioneer League championship.

The 2006 squad that finished 11-1 overall led all NCAA Division I-AA teams in passing offense (293.3 ypg), total offense (494.25 ypg) and scoring offense (42.83 ppg). Quarterback Josh Johnson was one of four offensive All-Americans on the team and led all NCAA Division I-AA quarterbacks in passing efficiency (169.0 quarterback rating), touchdown passes (34, co-leader), points responsible for (24.33 ppg) and total offense (336.7 ypg), throwing for 3320 yards to also lead the country and running for another 721. He added 11 rushing touchdowns and even caught one TD pass.

He had coached the previous nine seasons in the National Football League with the Philadelphia Eagles (1997), Oakland Raiders (1998-2001) and Baltimore Ravens (2002-05).

Shaw's most recent coaching job in the NFL with Baltimore spanned 2002-05. He was both a quarterbacks and wide receivers coach from 2002-04 before working solely with the wide receivers in 2005. His tenure included a 2003 campaign that reaped a AFC North title and a 10-6 regular season record. Derrick Mason set a new franchise record with 86 receptions under Shaw's tutelage in 2005 when he also posted the third-biggest season in terms of receiving yards with 1073. Mark Clayton set a franchise rookie record for receptions in 2005 when he caught 44 balls for 471 yards.

After three seasons of quality control with the Oakland Raiders from 1998-2000, Shaw moved into the role of quarterbacks coach in 2001 as the Raiders won a second straight AFC West title and finished the regular season with a 10-6 mark. Quarterback Rich Gannon made the NFL Pro Bowl for the second straight season and ended up as the game's MVP. Gannon had the third-most prolific season of his 16-year pro career during the 2001 regular season, passing for 3828 yards on 361-of-549 passing (65.8%).

Shaw got his start in the NFL in quality control with the Philadelphia Eagles in 1997.

His first two seasons of coaching came in the collegiate ranks at Western Washington, where he coached the outside linebackers in 1995 and the tight ends coach in 1996.

His father, Willie, was an assistant coach at Stanford from 1974-76 and again from 1989-91. He coached for a total of 33 seasons, including 15 in the NFL with the Detroit Lions, Kansas City Chiefs, Minnesota Vikings, New Orleans Saints, Oakland Raiders, San Diego Chargers and St. Louis Rams.

Willie Taggart
Running Backs

Willie Taggart will be in his first season as the running backs coach at Stanford in 2007. He has the team's top two rushers from last season in Anthony Kimble and Toby Gerhart among the returnees to work with.

Taggart has spent the past eight campaigns on the Western Kentucky coaching staff (1999-2006), helping guide the Hilltoppers to eight consecutive winning campaigns during the stretch. He worked with first-year Stanford head coach Jim Harbaugh in his first three seasons of coaching from 1999-2001. Taggart started his coaching career as Western Kentucky's wide receivers coach in 1999 before working with the quarterbacks from 2000-06. He was also the co-offensive coordinator in 2001 and 2002, helping lead the Hilltoppers to the Division I-AA national championship in 2002 and was promoted to assistant head coach in 2003.

Under Taggart's guidance, quarterback Justin Haddix set school career records with 8890 yards of total offense, a 57.1 completion percentage, 50 touchdowns and a 137.28 pass efficiency rating. Haddix also ranks second all-time on the Hill with 541 completions and 7929 yards passing. As a senior, Haddix earned All-Gateway Football Conference honorable mention recognition for the second year in a row after completing a career-high 171 of his 279 passes for 2186 yards – the third-highest single-season total in school history – and 14 touchdowns. He ranked second in the league in passing average, third in total offense and fifth in passing efficiency. Haddix was also a Second Team All-GFC selection in 2004 while picking up the league's Freshman of the Year award in 2003.

Taggart helped coach an offensive unit that set school records for points (432), total yards (5479) and first downs (263) en route to the 2002 NCAA Division I-AA national championship. The Hilltoppers ranked second in the nation in pass efficiency and sixth in rushing, and averaged 38.8 points per contest in four playoff victories.

In Taggart's first year calling plays in 2000, WKU ran for 293.4 yards per contest, leading the Gateway Football Conference and ranking second in the country in the category. The Toppers averaged 33.0 points per game and led the Ohio Valley Conference in rushing for the second straight year as WKU claimed the league title and advanced to the quarterfinals of the I-AA playoffs. In his first season in 1999, WKU ranked eighth in the nation and first in the OVC in rushing.

Taggart's efforts also helped WKU quarterbacks earn honorable mention all-conference accolades in three consecutive seasons – Jason Johnson (2000), Donte Pimpleton (2001) and Jason Michael (2002).

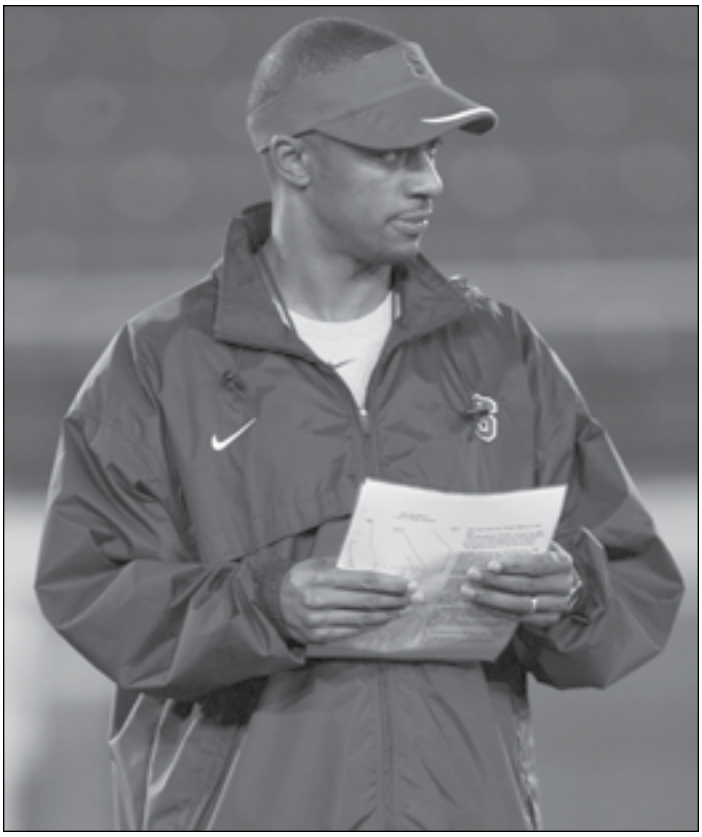

Taggart also spent his collegiate playing days at Western Kentucky, where he became the top rushing quarterback in Division I-AA history with 3997 yards (he is still second all-time among quarterbacks) at the end of his career, which is also a WKU standard for all runners. In addition, he remains the all-time leading scorer at Western Kentucky with 280 points. He was a finalist for the prestigious Walter Payton Award in each of his last two seasons for an honor given annually to the top offensive player in I-AA football, finishing fourth in the balloting in 1997 and seventh as a senior the following year. An All-American as a senior, he was also the 1998 I-AA Independents' Offensive Player of the Year.

He was only the third WKU athlete in the past half-century to hold down the quarterback slot for the Hilltoppers four straight years. Taggart – who holds 11 WKU school records for rushing and scoring – had his jersey retired on October 23, 1999.

Taggart graduated from Western Kentucky with a Bachelor's degree in Social Sciences in 1998.

As a prep standout at Manatee High School, he was a First Team All-State and All-Conference selection as a senior after guiding the Hurricanes to the state 5A Championship game. He led MHS to the state title his junior season and helped the school post a 26-4 record during that two-year span while recording more than 3000 yards passing and 975 yards on the ground.

Willie and his wife Taneshia have two children, Willie, Jr. and Jackson.

Clayton White
Defensive Backs

Former NFL player Clayton White was named Stanford's defensive backs coach on February 21, 2007. White, a graduate of North Carolina State University, coached the secondary at Western Michigan in 2006 under new Cardinal defensive coordinator Scott Shafer.

White was a three-year starter at N.C. State and played three years of professional football before joining the coaching ranks. He coached two seasons at Western Carolina (2004-05) as the defensive backs coach and special teams assistant.

While at Western Michigan, White was part of Broncos staff that led the team to an 8-5 record and an appearance in the 2007 International Bowl played in Toronto. He coached on a defense that led the nation with 24 interceptions and 3.54 sacks per game, while ranking tied for second with 37 turnovers gained, tied for sixth in yards rushing yards allowed per game (76.1) and seventh in turnover margin (+0.92).

He spent the previous two seasons (2004-05) at Western Carolina where he coached the defensive backs, was a special teams assistant and recruiting coordinator. The Catamounts led the nation in pass defense, ranked fifth in passing efficiency defense and 18th in overall defense in 2005. He also coached a pair of defensive backs (Francis Brown and Primus Glover) to First Team All-SOCON honors.

White's special teams unit ranked third in the SOCON in yards per punt return (9.84 ypr) in 2004, while Western Carolina recorded two blocked kicks that were returned for touchdowns in 2005. White also served as the football program's recruiting coordinator during his two seasons.

A native of Dunn, N.C., White went on to play professionally in the NFL from 2001-03. He was a member of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers from March to August of 2003 as a linebacker and special teams player. He spent two seasons (2001-02) with the New York Giants, also as a linebacker and member of the special teams unit. White played every special teams snap during the 2001 season and made seven tackles for the Giants.

White, a former safety, was a three-year starter at linebacker from 1999-2001 and a member of the special teams unit during his collegiate playing days with North Carolina State. A captain as a senior, White's name still appears in the Wolfpack record book in several categories. At the end of the 2006 season, White ranked 10th all-time at North Carolina State in career tackles for loss with 33 stops behind the line of scrimmage for 107 yards, seventh in tackles for loss in a season (16 in 1998), sixth in single game history with 23 tackles versus Ohio and 10th in the same category with 20 tackles in a game against Texas. He was also named N.C. State's Special Teams MVP in 1997.

White received his Bachelor's of Science degree from the school in parks, recreation and tourism with a concentration in sports management in 2001.

Shannon Turley
Strength and Conditioning

Shannon Turley is in his first season as the strength and conditioning coach for Stanford Football in 2007. Turley spent the 2006 campaign at the University of San Diego with current Stanford head coach Jim Harbaugh as the Director of Athletic Performance, where he led a comprehensive injury prevention and athletic performance enhancement training program for all of the Toreros' 16-sport programs.

Turley served the University of Missouri (2001-05) for the five previous years, the first two as a graduate assistant while earning his Master's degree in Education and Counseling Psychology with a concentration in Sports Psychology in 2003, then the final three as assistant director of strength and conditioning. During his tenure at Mizzou, he assisted with the player development program for the football team as well as directed the training of the women's volleyball and wrestling programs. In addition to his coaching duties, Turley directed the annual Mizzou Athletic Performance Development Clinic, and was responsible for supervising the professional development of three graduate assistant coaches and four undergraduate intern coaches. Turley also developed and directed a comprehensive sports nutrition program for 20 varsity teams that included negotiating sponsorships with Kraft Foods and Gatorade, while managing the department's budget for the purchase of nutritional supplements.

Prior to his stint with the Tigers, Turley served the Kansas City Royals Baseball Club during the 2001 season where he was directly responsible for the strength and conditioning development of the AA affiliate Wichita Wranglers. A Virginia Tech alumnus, Turley earned a Bachelor's degree in the Science of Human Nutrition, Foods and Exercise in addition to a minor in Chemistry in 2000. While with the Hokies, Turley served as President of the Exercise Science Student Organization and began his career in strength and conditioning as a student assistant coach following his track and field career.

He is a certified member of the Collegiate Strength and Conditioning Coaches Association and the National Strength and Conditioning Association, as well as a certified sports nutritionist with the International Society of Sports Nutrition.

Matt Doyle

Director of Football Operations

Matt Doyle is entering his eighth season with the Stanford Football program and first as Director of Football Operations in 2007. Doyle, who came to Stanford in July of 2000 as the Associate Recruiting Coordinator, had been Associate Director of Football Operations the past four years. Prior to coming to The Farm, Doyle taught history, US Government and Journalism, while also coaching football and baseball at his alma mater St. Francis High School in nearby Mountain View. Doyle earned his Bachelor's degree in History, with a minor in English from UC Davis in 1998, where he played outfield on the baseball team. He earned his teaching credential from San Jose State and is working on his Master's degree in Sports Management at the University of San Francisco.

He and his wife, Hillary, married in the summer of 2005, reside in nearby Menlo Park.

Mike Gleeson

Video Director

Mike Gleeson is in his 15th year as the Video Director for the Department of Athletics in 2007. A native of Napa Valley, Gleeson came to Stanford after 10 years in professional football, including two with the New Orleans Saints, four with the Miami Dolphins, two with the Atlanta Falcons and two in the World Football League. In his current position, Gleeson oversees all of the audio, video and computer needs of the Football department. His responsibilities include video taping of all practices and games, and editing for the strategic preparation and planning by the football coaching staff. He has been named the Video Director of the Year in the Pacific-10 Conference five times.

Coleman Hutzler

Recruiting Assistant

Coleman Hutzler is beginning his first season with the Cardinal football program as a recruiting assistant in 2007. He will work closely with recruiting coordinator Lance Anderson. Hutzler, from Las Vegas, Nevada, attended Middlebury College in Middlebury, Vermont. He played football for the Panthers the past four seasons at linebacker and finished his career second all-time at the school with 246 tackles. The team captain also chipped in with 26 tackles for loss, 10 quarterback sacks, three interceptions and three forced fumbles. He attended The Meadows School in Las Vegas, Nevada, where the football team was a perennial state power.

Robyn Kamisher

Director of Football Administration

Now in her sixth year with the Cardinal football program, Robyn Kamisher begins her first season as the Director of Football Administration in 2007. She began working at Stanford in 2001 in the Student Services and Compliance department. Prior to coming to Stanford, she was the administrative associate to the Athletic Director at the University of San Francisco. Kamisher, who earned a Master's degree in Sports Management from USF in 2001, received her Bachelor's degree in Sociology and Women's Studies at UC Davis in 1998. She was an All-American softball player for the Aggies and was inducted into the UC Davis Athletic Hall of Fame in 2005. Robyn and her husband, Jason Gordon, reside in Burlingame.

Mike Sanford

Offensive Assistant

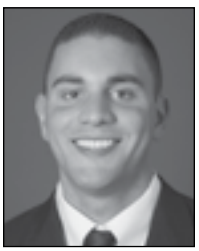

Mike Sanford, who played quarterback at Boise State from 2000-04, begins his first season for the Cardinal as an offensive assistant in 2007. Sanford was part of a Broncos' program that went to four bowl games during his five years in Boise. As a senior in 2004, Turner was part of a Boise State team that beat Louisville in the Liberty Bowl and finished with a 12-1 record. For the past two years, Sanford was a graduate assistant at UNLV (2005-06) working with his dad, Mike, who is the head coach and former offensive coordinator at Stanford. Sanford graduated from Boise State in 2004 with a Bachelor's degree in Politial Science.

Chris Turner

Director of Player Development

Chris Turner has coached in the NFL with the Oakland Raiders and on the intercollegiate level at Notre Dame and Bucknell, and he begins his first season at Stanford as Director of Player Development in 2007. Turner coached tight ends and was the assistant offensive line coach for the Raiders during his four-year tenure (2002-05) in Oakland. He was part of the 2002 Raiders' team that played in Super Bowl XXXVII. Turner spent seven seasons at Bucknell (1995-2001) and one year at Notre Dame as a graduate assistant (1994). At Bucknell, he spent time coaching quarterbacks, running backs, tackles and tight ends. He was a football administrative assistant at San Jose State during the 1993 season. Turner is a 1993 graduate of Long Beach State.

Matt Weiss

Graduate Assistant

Former Vanderbilt punter Matt Weiss is in his third season at Stanford as a graduate assistant coach in 2007 working on the defensive side of the ball. Weiss assisted with the defensive backs in 2005, and worked with outside linebackers and special teams in 2006. Before coming to Stanford, Weiss graduated Magna Cum Laude from Vanderbilt in the Fall of 2004, earning a Bachelor's of Science degree in Economics and Human and Organizational Development. He is currently working on a Master's degree in Liberal Arts at Stanford. Weiss was a member of the Vanderbilt football team in both 2001 and 2002, and was named to the Southeastern Conference Football Academic Honor Roll in 2002.

2007 SPRING OUTLOOK

First-year head coach Jim Harbaugh will rely upon the top offensive returnees T.C. Ostrander at quarterback, Anthony Kimble at running back and Richard Sherman at wide receiver.

It is a new day on The Farm.....

Jim Harbaugh, who guided the University of San Diego to back-to-back NCAA Division I-AA Mid-Major national championships, was hired on December 19, 2006 to take over the reigns of the Stanford football program. For the 43-year old former NFL veteran, AFC Offensive Player of the Year and Big Ten MVP, it is a challenge he and his staff eagerly anticipate.

Harbaugh takes over a team that returns 54 letterwinners, including 17 starters, from a 2006 club that finished 1-11. Stanford has seven starters back on offense, eight on defense and both kickers.

But as a first-year head coach, Harbaugh and his staff will be looking closely at personnel and trying to identify the team's playmakers as well as a starting unit.

"Winning starts with attitude," says Harbaugh. "Each season is new, especially this one, and it is our job as coaches to create a culture of working hard as a team and learning to trust each other.

"We will be a team that plays all-out, all the time," said Harbaugh. "We will out-hustle our opponents and play with great technique and continuous effort."

On offense, the Cardinal returns experienced players throughout the lineup, including a fifth-year senior at quarterback, its top three rushers, four experienced offensive lineman with starting experience and an experienced receiving corps Harbaugh says could be among the best in the Pac-10.

Defensively, Stanford must replace three talented players off last year's team, but eight returning starters is a good place for the Cardinal to begin.

"We'll have a West Coast philosophy on offense," he said. "We will be balanced running and throwing the ball. On defense, we'll be an attack 4-3."

"We will also be diverse enough on offense, defense and special teams to handle the talents of any motivated player who wants to play football. I've never been a big fan of 'this guy doesn't fit the system' – unless it has to do with toughness or character," said Harbaugh.

Following is a position-by-position breakdown of the 2007 Cardinal:

Toby Gerhart (#7) was the team's second-leading rusher as a freshman and Emeka Nnoli (#32) returns as the starting fullback. Mark Bradford (#4) and Evan Moore (#8) will be back to give Stanford strong talent at wide receiver. Jim Dray (#83) returns after starting 11 games in 2006 at tight end.

The Quarterbacks

After four years of Trent Edwards, who departed the Cardinal program with his name firmly in the Stanford record book, Stanford will turn to a new starting quarterback in 2007. Only this quarterback is not entirely new to the starting position. T.C. Ostrander, now in his fifth season at Stanford, has started seven games and played in 22 over the past three seasons as Edwards' backup. He started the final five games of the 2006 season and finished the year completing 72-of-185 passes for 918 yards and three touchdowns. Throughout his career, Ostrander has thrown for 2361 yards and eight touchdowns and has shown the ability to become an outstanding full-time quarterback. He has seen action against the best teams in college football, including USC, Notre Dame, California, Oregon and UCLA, among others, and he enters the 2007 season as an experienced, Pac-10 veteran. Behind Ostrander is sophomore Tavita Pritchard, who redshirted his freshman season and saw limited action a year ago, and three others who have not yet played. Pritchard was the team's No. 3 quarterback in 2006. He played a reserve role in five games and threw just one pass. Junior Garrett Moore begins his fourth year in the Cardinal program as a reserve quarterback while redshirt freshmen Alex Loukas and Nicolas Ruhl will be looking to compete for playing time in 2007. Loukas came to Stanford from Deerfield High School in Illinois in 2006 as one of the top prep quarterbacks in the country while Ruhl is a walk-on from Lincoln High School in Stockton, Calif.

The Running Backs

Stanford returns its entire backfield and all of its key players from 2006, but improvement in the running game is a must if the Cardinal is to increase its offensive production. The running back tandem of Anthony Kimble and Toby Gerhart are back in 2007 as is starting fullback Emeka Nnoli. Kimble, now a junior, started 11 of 12 games a year ago and led the team in rushing with 470 yards and two touchdowns. He also had a team-leading 114 carries, 4.1 yards per carry average and a career-best 58-yard run. Kimble has rushed for 714 yards and four touchdowns the past two seasons while catching 33 passes out of the backfield for another 301 yards and two TDs. Gerhart, meanwhile, came on as a true freshman last year to become one of the team's top offensive weapons. He played in all 12 games and wound up as the team's second-leading rusher with 375 yards. In his first two collegiate games, Gerhart was impressive in a 16-carry, 55-yard effort at Oregon and a 13-carry, 82-yard game the next week versus San Jose State. A two-sport athlete who also plays outfield for Stanford's nationally-ranked baseball team, Gerhart will split time during the spring between baseball and football. Jason Evans is a fifth-year senior who played a reserve role last year at running back and was the team's top kick return specialist (16-349-21.8). He had 72 carries during the 2005 season and has shown the ability to be an effective back. Two other candidates looking to earn playing time in 2007 are sophomore Xxavier Carter, who has not played the past two years, and redshirt freshman Tyrone McGraw from San Francisco. Nnoli returns as Stanford's starting fullback after a 2006 season that saw him in the starting lineup the last 10 games after Nick Frank suffered a career-ending injury. Sophomore Josh Catron, a converted linebacker, was a backup a year ago who will compete for increased playing time this season and redshirt freshman Sam Weinberger has been converted to fullback after playing linebacker a year ago.

Key returnees on the offensive line include Alex Fletcher (#60), who started nine games at center last year, and 2005 starting center Tim Mattran (#62). At tackle, Allen Smith (#67) has started 20 straight games in the past two years and Chris Marinelli (#63) started five games last year.

The Wide Receivers

"With Evan Moore, Mark Bradford and Richard Sherman, I think we have the potential to be the best receiving corps in the Pac-10," says Harbaugh.

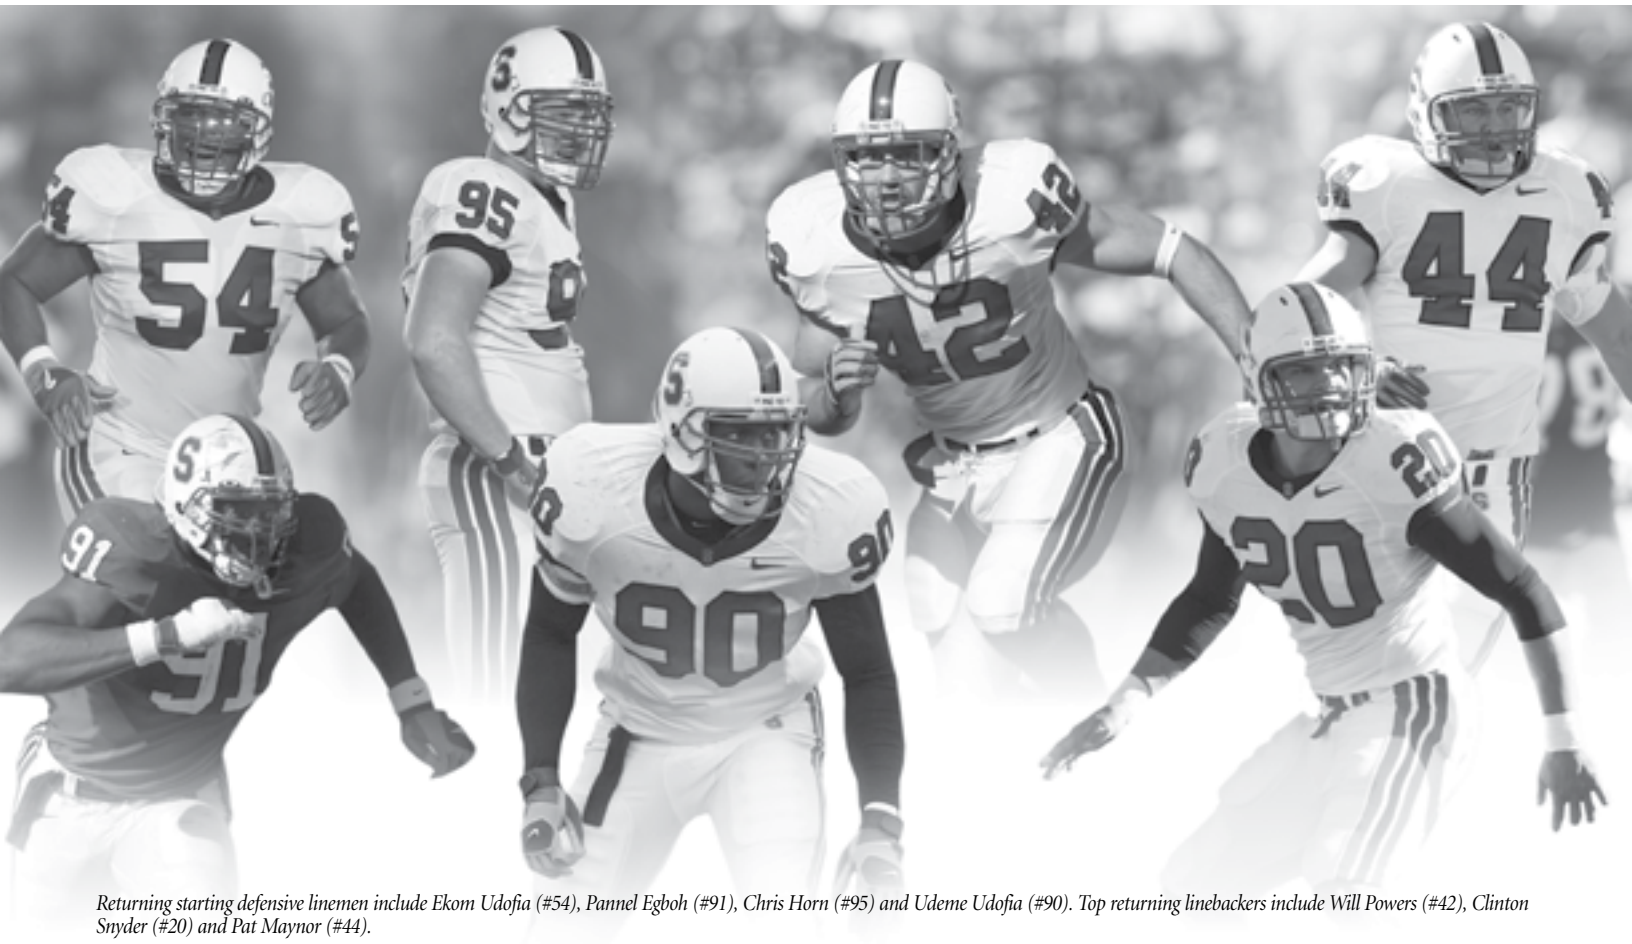

Indeed the first-year head coach received a pleasant surprise when both Moore and Bradford decided to return to Stanford for the 2007 season. Both suffered injuries in 2006 and both had options to end their Cardinal careers. But, the return of Moore and Bradford, together with Sherman and the rest of the receiving corps give the Cardinal a very talented and deep group. Bradford has caught 118 passes for 1789 yards and 11 touchdowns in his Stanford career, and his season-ending injury in the first series of the second game last year was a significant loss for the Cardinal offense. Bradford caught nine passes in the season opener and was primed for an outstanding 2006 campaign before the injury. Likewise, Moore has suffered from injury throughout his Stanford career. When healthy, however, he has proven to be a difficult matchup for defenses with his 6-7 frame. In 26 games, Moore has caught 64 passes for 1074 yards, 11 TDs and a 16.8 average. His best year was 2004 when he caught 39 passes for 616 yards and six touchdowns. Then there's Sherman, the second-year sophomore who led the team in receptions last year as a true freshman with 34 catches for 581 yards (17.1 avg) and three touchdowns. In his last four games, Sherman averaged 101.5 receiving yards per game and 20.3 yards per catch as he made a statement as one of the top young receivers in the Pac-10. All totaled, Stanford returns 162 of its 167 receptions from a year ago. Kelton Lynn, who started five games, caught 19 passes for 254 yards and two touchdowns while true freshman Austin Yancy, who may be moved to defense in 2007, hauled in 16 receptions. Three talented redshirt freshman who did not play in 2006 but look to battle for playing time in 2007 are Stephen Carr, Mark Mueller and Marcus Rance. Senior Michael Miller, junior Nate Wilcox-Fogel and Chris Hobbs, who will be looked at as a receiver during the spring, all help to give the Cardinal a very talented and deep receiving corps.

The Tight Ends

The Cardinal should be solid at the tight end position as 2006 starter Jim Dray returns along with two-year letterwinner Austin Gunder, junior Patrick Bowe and converted fullback Ben Ladner. One name missing from this list is sophomore Erik Lorig, who will be switched to defensive end for the 2007 season. Dray started 11 of 12 games last season and finished the year with 19 catches for 178 yards and one touchdown and has given notice that he has the potential to become and outstanding Pac-10 tight end. Gunder has been a solid contributor in a reserve role while Bowe possesses the ability to compete for increased playing time in 2007.

The Offensive Line

Stanford returns five members off its offensive line who have had significant starting experience, including four who were in the starting lineup at times during the 2006 campaign. The two most experienced linemen on the team are juniors Alex Fletcher and Allen Smith. Fletcher has started 20 games the past two seasons, 12 at guard and eight at center, while Smith has been in the starting lineup for the Cardinal the past 20 games. Smith heads a list of five tackles who will compete for playing time. Sophomore Chris Marinelli started five games a year ago and showed great potential while junior Ben Muth has been a valuable backup the past two years. Redshirt freshmen Joe Dembesky and John Kyed came to Stanford a year ago with impressive credentials and both will be given an opportunity to play a prominent role in 2007. At the guard positions, along with Fletcher, seniors

Returning starting defensive linemen include Ekom Udofia (#54), Pannel Egboh (#91), Chris Horn (#95) and Udeme Udofia (#90). Top returning linebackers include Will Powers (#42), Clinton Snyder (#20) and Pat Maynor (#44).

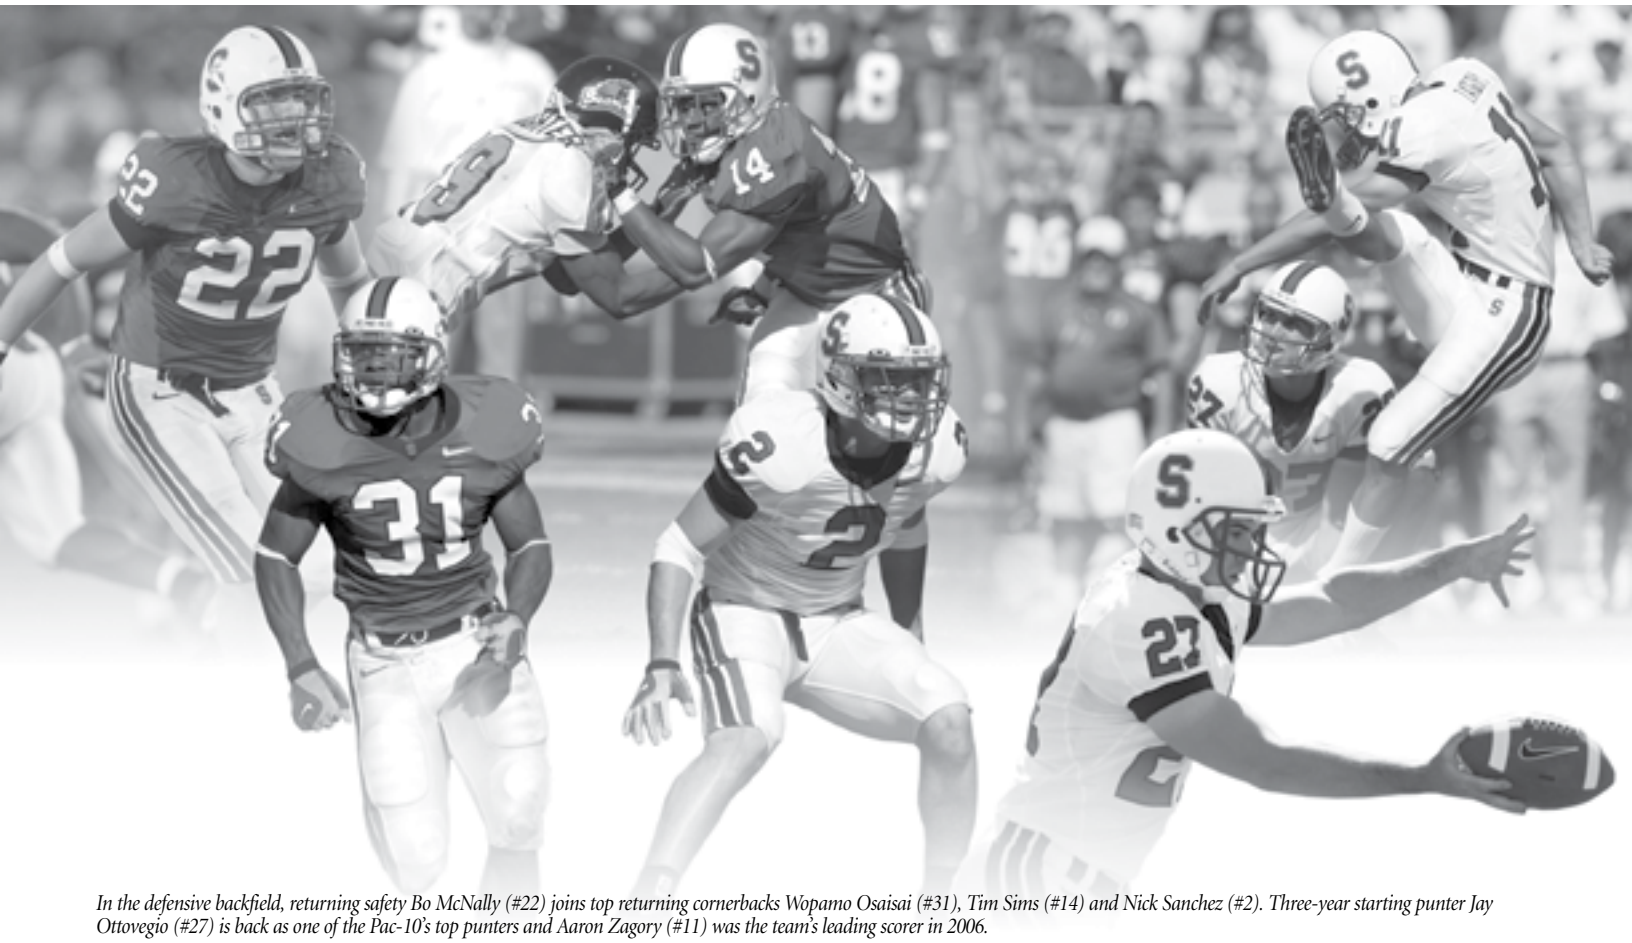

Mikal Brewer and Preston Clover, both three-year letterwinners, and junior Bobby Dockter will battle for playing time. Brewer has started six games in his career, including three a year ago. Two players moving over from the defensive line are junior Gustav Rydstedt, a two-year letterwinner on the defensive line, and sophomore James McGillicuddy, who is listed on the roster as both a guard and defensive tackle. Both will compete for playing time at guard along with redshirt freshman Andrew Phillips. At center, Tim Mattran was granted a sixth year of eligibility by the NCAA after suffering through an injury-plagued 2006 campaign. Mattran, the team's starting center in 2005, was slated to be the starter a year ago, but was unable to play due to injury. His return is a big boost to the Cardinal offensive line. Competing with Mattran at center will be redshirt freshman Bert McBride.

The Defensive Line

Stanford will change to an "attack" 4-3 defense in 2007, utilizing two ends, a tackle and nose tackle, although players are interchangeable at several positions. At left end, junior Pannel Egboh and sophomore Levirt Griffin will compete for playing time. Egboh started all 12 games a year ago and led the team with 5.5 tackles for loss while leading all linemen with 45 total tackles. Griffin played all 12 games as a true freshman and gave notice that he has the skills to be a solid player for Stanford in 2007. At right end, three-year letterwinners Udeme Udofia and Emmanuel Awofadeju will compete with Erik Lorig, a converted tight end who will move to the defensive side of the ball this season. Udofia started nine games a year ago at outside linebacker and has started 20 the last two years. Awofadeju has been a reserve player the past three seasons and a member of special teams. Lorig came to Stanford as one of the nation's top recruits and has played tight end the past two years, but his athletic ability will be tested on defense this season. At the nose tackle, spot senior Chris Horn will compete with sophomores Matt Kopa and Sione Fua. Horn had 27 tackles and four tackles for loss last season. While neither Fua nor Kopa started a game in 2006, each played in all 12 in a reserve role, Fua as a true freshman. Their game experience a year ago should pay dividends in 2007. At the tackle spot, sophomores Ekom Udofia, Derek Hall and possibly James McGillicuddy will do battle. Udofia was the team's starter in all 12 games last season at nose tackle and was second among linemen with 43 total tackles. Hall redshirted his true freshman season a year ago and should be ready to contribute in 2007. McGillicuddy, who may play on the offensive line in 2007, has not yet played for the Cardinal after two years on the Farm. He redshirted in 2005 and suffered though an injury-plagued 2006 season.

The Linebackers

While the Cardinal must replace All-Pac-10 linebacker Michael Okwo, the cupboard is certainly not bare at the three linebacker positions as several returning players received significant playing time in 2006. Among the most experienced of the group is sophomore Clinton Snyder, who started 11 of 12 games a year ago at outside linebacker, junior Pat Maynor, a starter in nine games, and sophomore Will Powers, who started four games. Snyder finished the 2006 campaign third on the team and 11th in the Pac-10 with 83 stops. Senior Peter Griffin and redshirt freshman Nick Macaluso will compete with Snyder at one OLB spot. The other OLB position includes Powers, sophomore Fred Campbell and senior Landon Johnson. Powers played in 11 games, starting four, and accounted for 17 tackles last season. Campbell started one game last year and showed great promise, while Johnson is a two-year letterwinner primarily as a special teams player. The middle linebacker spot will be a battle between Maynor,

In the defensive backfield, returning safety Bo McNally (#22) joins top returning cornerbacks Wopamo Osaisai (#31), Tim Sims (#14) and Nick Sanchez (#2). Three-year starting punter Jay Ottovegio (#27) is back as one of the Pac-10's top punters and Aaron Zagory (#11) was the team's leading scorer in 2006.

the most experienced in the group, and talented sophomores Brian Bulcke and Tom McAndrew, a converted defensive lineman. Maynor had 44 tackles, including three for loss, in 10 games a year ago when he started six games in the middle and three on the outside. Bulcke started one game as a true freshman last year before injuries slowed him throughout the remainder of the season. In his one start, however, he accounted for 14 tackles in a game versus Navy. McAndrew played in all 12 games a year ago as a defensive end, but will be moved to middle linebacker in 2007. He had 14 total stops in 2006 and showed signs that he has the ability to be a significant contributor to the Cardinal defense for the next three seasons.

The Secondary

Stanford has three experienced cornerbacks returning in 2007 but must fill a big void at both safety positions. In Brandon Harrison, Trevor Hooper and David Lofton, the Cardinal must replace the three players who took most of the snaps at both safety positions in 2006. At cornerback, however, three veteran Pac-10 players return in junior Wopamo Osaisai and seniors Tim Sims and Nick Sanchez. Osaisai burst onto the scene at mid-season last year and earned a reputation as a playmaker with athletic ability and great speed. He started six of Stanford's final seven games, tallied 52 tackles and a team-high six pass breakups, and showed his speed with a 72-yard interception return for a touchdown, the fourth longest in Stanford football history. Osaisai also emerged as the Pac-10's top special teams performer as he was named the league's Special Teams Player of the Year. Sanchez has started 16 games and played in 32 in his Stanford career and his 100 total tackles is tops among Cardinal defensive backs. Sims moved into the starting lineup for the first time last year, starting seven games, and led all Stanford cornerbacks with 54 tackles. Sophomores Chris Hobbs, who may also play receiver, Kris Evans and C.J. Easter will also compete for playing time at cornerback. At the safety positions, there is youth and inexperience. Sophomore Bo McNally played in all 12 games last year, starting one, and is the only returner on the 2007 squad with significant game experience at safety. McNally will play strong safety along with sophomore Blaise Johnson and redshirt freshmen Tyler Porras and Jerome Jackson. At free safety, junior Carlos McFall saw limited action last year in a backup role, but emerges in 2007 with the most experience at that position. Austin Yancy, who started six games at wide receiver last year as a true freshman, will be looked at to potentially play free safety in 2007. The other candidates are junior Thaddeus Chase, sophomore Kenny Long and redshirt freshman Robert Polk.

The Specialists

Stanford returns all four of its specialists from last year in P Jay Ottovegio, PK Aaron Zagory, LS Brent Newhouse, and kickoff specialist and backup PK Derek Belch. Ottovegio begins his fourth season as Stanford's punter. He has a career average of 40.6 and by the time the 2007 season concludes, Ottovegio could become Stanford's all-time leader in punting yardage and punts. Zagory hit eight-of-13 field goals last season in his first year as the starter while Belch missed his only attempt but was effective on kickoffs. Newhouse begins his fourth season as Stanford's long snapper.
